Extended forecast – The majority of Saturday is likely to remain dry. As a front meanders through the state, it may lead to a line of showers and embedded thunderstorms in the area during the afternoon. Dry and cloudy conditions return on Sunday. Rain showers and thunderstorm chances are more likely on Monday as a more organized system approaches the area. Winds this weekend are expected to remain near 10mph sustained and less than 20mph gusts. The direction will vary throughout the day due to light speeds. High temperatures will remain near 80F each day.
