Thursday – A front is expected to pass south through NC today and lead to showers and embedded thunderstorms later in the afternoon. Currently, the front looks to pass through the area, before anything begins to form leading to a mostly dry and cloudy day. Winds will turn from the W-SW prior to sunrise to the NW and then N throughout the day. Sustained winds will remain near 10mph, with wind gusts in the upper teens. Temperatures will once again reach the mid 80s.
