Today – Cloud cover will continue to thicken and while dry conditions are favored, some patches of drizzle can't be completely ruled out this afternoon. Otherwise, the main weather feature will be the strengthening southerly winds this afternoon. Sustained speeds of 15+ mph will be possible. Peak gusts of 20-25 mph are expected. Sunrise: 6:56am / Sunset: 5:47pm

Sunday	8am	10am	12pm	2pm	4pm	6pm

Tomorrow – A broad area of low pressure to approach California Sunday with showers increasing in coverage and intensity as the day progresses. These showers should eventually transition to a steady/heavy rain Sunday night. The other, and potentially bigger concern will be winds. Sustained southerly winds of 15-25 mph with gusts to 35 mph are possible. If these winds develop, it would most likely be after 11am. Forecast rainfall before 4pm: Less than 0.25". Sunrise: 6:55am / Sunset: 5:48pm
