Extended forecast– Fog will be likely Friday to start the day. Otherwise, the chance for scattered showers and thunderstorms increases Friday afternoon as a back-door cold front moves towards the state from the north. It will be another hot and humid day with highs in the upper 80s. The front is expected to stall over the Carolinas this weekend, keeping a high likelihood for showers and thunderstorms through the weekend. No severe weather is expected, but storms will be slow moving and will likely produce heavy rainfall in a short period of time.
