J.J. Spaun Wins the 2025 Championship

All week at Oakmont Country Club, J.J. Spaun wielded his trusty putter like a magic wand. It started on Thursday with the only bogey-free round (66) of the U.S. Open, and 72 hours later he closed one of the wildest Sundays in the 125 editions of this championship with an improbable, cross-country birdie putt on the 72nd green.

The 34-year-old Southern Californian, with just one PGA Tour victory to his name, punctuated the life-changing moment of his 14-year professional career by rolling in a 65-foot putt to edge Scotland's Robert MacIntyre by two strokes. Spaun, a former San Diego State star, posted a final-round, 2-over 72 for a 72-hole total of 1-under 279. He was the lone competitor to finish in red figures.

MacIntyre, the owner of five professional titles, including the 2024 RBC Canadian Open and the 2024 Genesis Scottish Open, was the only player among the final 17 pairings to better par with a 2-under 68 and a 72-hole score of 271. He also became the third left-hander to finish as a runner-up – joining Phil Mickelson (6 times) and Brian Harman (2017) – in the only major championship to not have a southpaw winner.

“As bad as things were going, I just still tried to just commit to every shot,” said Spaun. “I tried to continue to dig deep. I’ve been doing it my whole life.”

“I think that’s been the biggest difference this year – being able to do that. Fortunately, I dug very deep on the back nine, and things went my way, and here we are with the trophy.”

Every Sunday at a U.S. Open brings an enormous amount of pressure, whether it’s physical or mental. Add Oakmont, one of the most challenging venues in all of golf, to the equation and that factor only intensifies.

Additionally, Mother Nature decided to add a wrinkle to the festivities. As if the venerable western Pennsylvania layout hosting its record 10th U.S. Open hadn’t received enough precipitation already – 13 inches over the last month – a late-afternoon storm dumped even more water on the course, causing a 96-minute weather delay and forcing the competitors to make additional adjustments.

It threw virtually everyone in contention for a loop. Sam Burns, the 36- and 54-hole leader, was seemingly in control when the 28-year-old Louisianan made his first birdie of the day, an 11-footer on the par-4 10th to go two clear of Australian Adam Scott, the 2013 Masters champion, who at 44 was vying to become the second-oldest champion in U.S. Open history. Oakmont sent both spiraling in the wrong direction as Burns played his final seven holes in 6 over par for a final-round 78 and a share of seventh with world No. 1 Scottie Scheffler and 2021 U.S. Open champion Jon Rahm at 4-over 284.

Scott couldn’t repeat his brilliance of the first three days, when he was the only player in the field to not record an over-par round. He carded a final-round 79 and tied for 12th at 6-over 286.

Spaun also seemed destined for a similar fate, especially after starting the final round with five consecutive 5s that included a couple of bad breaks, most notably hitting the flagstick with his approach on the par-4 2nd hole, leading to a bogey. He posted a front-nine 40 and sat four strokes behind Burns.

Only MacIntyre, a 28-year-old who began the day seven strokes behind Burns, made a Sunday charge, bolstered by an eagle at the par-5 4th. But despite playing his final 10 holes in 3 under par, he came up two strokes short.

“Almost got there, but not quite,” said MacIntyre, who started the day with bogeys at 1 and 3. “I always thought I could really challenge, even going into today, but obviously the start wasn’t a help.”

As so many chasers unraveled, a group that included Viktor Hovland (73—282, 3rd), Tyrrell Hatton (72—283, T-4), Cameron Young (70—283, T-4) and Carlos Ortiz (73—283, T-4), Spaun managed to steady the ship through all of the turbulence. His lone bogey during a highly intense back nine came after he hit a wayward drive at the 503-yard, par-4 15th, the statistically toughest hole on Sunday (4.58). But the man who was No. 2 in strokes gained-putting (plus-2.29) and 12th in putts per green (1.82) registered birdies on Nos. 12 (41 feet), 14 (22 feet), 17 (two putts from 22 feet) and the closer on 18.

His tee shot on the 314-yard 17th was one of his best of the week. After his eagle try went 3½ feet past the hole, he calmly rolled in the next one.

Spaun’s final putt of the championship was reminiscent of the one Larry Nelson converted to beat defending champion Tom Watson on Oakmont’s 16th hole in 1983 (a year when the championship also was affected by weather). Spaun finished the week converting a total of 401.5 feet of putts, the most by anyone in the championship.

“That was unbelievable,” said Hovland, who played alongside Spaun. “After his start, it just looked like he was out of it immediately. Everyone came back to the pack. I wasn’t expecting that really. I thought I had to shoot maybe 3 under par today to have a good chance, but obviously the conditions got really, really tough, and this golf course is just a beast.”

Now, Spaun will forever be a U.S. Open champion at Oakmont, adding his name to an incredible legacy of achievement.

Championship History

On Oct. 4, 1895, the first U.S. Open Championship was conducted by the United States Golf Association on the nine-hole course of Newport (R.I.) Golf and Country Club.

The first U.S. Open was considered something of a sideshow to the first U.S. Amateur, which was played on the same course and during the same week. Both championships had been scheduled for September but were postponed due to a conflict with a more established Newport sports spectacle, the America's Cup yacht races.

Ten professionals and one amateur started in the 36-hole competition, which was four trips around the Newport course in one day. The surprise winner was Horace Rawlins, 21, an English professional who was the assistant at the host course. Rawlins scored 91-82—173 with the gutta-percha ball.

Prize money totaled $335, of which Rawlins won the $150 first prize. He also received a gold medal and custody of the Open Championship Trophy for his club for one year.

In its first decade, the U.S. Open was conducted for amateurs and the largely British wave of immigrant golf professionals coming to the United States.

As American players began to dominate the game, the U.S. Open evolved into an important world golf championship. Young John J. McDermott became the first native-born American winner in 1911 and repeated as champion in 1912.

In 1913, the U.S. Open really took off when Francis Ouimet, a 20-year-old American amateur, stunned the golf world by defeating the famous English professionals Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in a playoff.

Another surge in the championship's popularity coincided with the amazing career of Georgia amateur Robert T. Jones Jr., who won the U.S. Open four times (1923, 1926, 1929, 1930). Spectator tickets were sold for the first time in 1922 and a boom in entries caused the USGA to introduce sectional qualifying in 1924.

In 1933, John Goodman became the fifth and last amateur to win the U.S. Open. The others were Ouimet, Jerome D. Travers (1915), Charles Evans Jr. (1916) and Jones.

In each era, the world's greatest players have been identified by surviving the rigorous examination provided by the U.S. Open. Ben Hogan's steely determination boosted him to four victories (1948, 1950, 1951, 1953). Arnold Palmer's record comeback win in 1960, when he fired a final-round 65 to come from seven strokes off the lead, cemented his dashing image. Jack Nicklaus' historic assault on the professional record book began when he won the first of his four U.S. Open Championships in 1962, his rookie season as a professional.

Nicklaus, who also won in 1967, 1972 and 1980, is one of only four golfers to capture four U.S. Open titles. The others are Willie Anderson (1901, 1903, 1904, 1905), Jones and Hogan.

In 1954, the U.S. Open course was roped from tee to green for the first time. That year also marked the first national television coverage. Coverage was expanded by ABC Sports in 1977 so that all 18 holes of the final two rounds were broadcast live. In 1982, the first two rounds were broadcast live for the first time on ESPN. NBC began televising the U.S. Open in 1995 and was followed by Fox in 2015. NBC returned as the broadcast partner in 2020 at Winged Foot Golf Club.

The format of the U.S. Open has changed several times. The USGA extended the championship to 72 holes in 1898, with 36 holes played on each of two days. In 1926, the format was changed to 18 holes played each of two days, then 36 holes on the third day. In 1965, the present format of four 18-hole daily rounds was implemented for the first time.

In 2002, a two-tee (No. 1 and No. 10) start was used for the first and second rounds. In addition, Bethpage State Park's Black Course in Farmingdale, N.Y., became the first facility owned by the public to host a U.S. Open. International qualifying sites were added in 2005 and the champion at Pinehurst Resort & Country Club, in Village of Pinehurst, N.C., was Michael Campbell, who qualified in England.

Brooks Koepka became the first player since Curtis Strange (1988-89) to win consecutive U.S. Opens with his victory at Shinnecock Hills Golf Club in 2018. Koepka also became the 22nd player to capture multiple U.S. Open Championships. Bryson DeChambeau would become the 23rd in 2024.

In 2020, the U.S. Open was postponed from June to September due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Both stages of qualifying were canceled which resulted in an all-exempt field. The field was limited to 144 players due to less daylight in the fall.
