Extended forecast – An upper-level trough of low pressure will promote the development of isolated showers on Saturday. A few showers may pass through Saturday night before becoming isolated in coverage for Sunday morning. Sunday afternoon will then see a scattered redevelopment of showers. Breezy west-northwesterly winds will arrive after 11am Saturday. The temperature will start off in the mid-70s each morning before rising into the mid-80s each afternoon.

Forecast prepared by meteorologist Joe Halvorson.
