Today – Mostly sunny to partly cloudy this morning with increasing clouds in the afternoon. An isolated light shower or two may occur as weakening ocean showers and moisture drift in from the west. The temperature will reach a high near 84°F. West-northwesterly winds will increase to 10-17 mph in the afternoon along with occasional gusts in the 18-22 mph range.

Tomorrow – Skies will range from a mix of sun and clouds to mostly cloudy on Sunday. A stray shower cannot be ruled out Sunday morning. Anticipate dry conditions towards midday before a sea breeze slowly moves inland from the south during the afternoon and promotes the potential for a few pop-up showers. The temperature will reach a high in the mid-80s. Light and variable winds in the morning will become southerly during the afternoon.
