Foreword

Comissioner Deane R. Beman

For the first time, the PGA TOUR's Official Media Guide is available to the public. The book, produced annually, has long been required reading and a standby reference for the many writers and broadcasters who cover PGA TOUR tournaments across the country, and we hope that you share their enthusiasm for it.

In the Media Guide you will find some of the history and background of the PGA TOUR, as well as a glimpse of how this organization operates. The book includes extensive biographical information of the leading players, and shorter sketches of other prominent members.

More than any other sport, golf has an extensive history, and much of that colorful history is contained in the wealth of records, statistics, facts and figures which represent the current status of the players and the tournaments of this great game.

We hope you enjoy a better acquaintance with the PGA TOUR, its players and its tournaments through the PGA TOUR Media Guide.

A PGA TOUR Primer:

How the World's Leading Professional Tournament Circuit Operates

The PGA TOUR is a unique sports organization. It is an association of approximately 350 professional tournament players who participate in some 43 events yearly across the country.

The PGA TOUR is at once the players who are its members; the succession of individual tournaments which are on its schedule; and the administrative and operational arm for the players and those tournaments.

The governing body of the PGA TOUR is the Tournament Policy Board, which sets the goals and policies of the organization. Responsibility for administration and day-to-day operations rests in the hands of the Commissioner, Deane R. Beman, who is appointed by the Tournament Policy Board.

The PGA TOUR is headquartered at the new Tournament Players Club at Sawgrass, in Ponte Vedra, FL. But to the players, the tournament sponsors and golf's many followers, the PGA TOUR is the city where the tournament action is taking place.

From a collection of tournaments in Florida, California and Texas, which in the early days were a winter pastime for club professionals during the off-season, the PGA TOUR has evolved into a thoroughly professional organization which operates 43 tournaments with prize monies of more than $13 million.

The players, who in the early days were products of the caddie yards and pro shops, are now most often the graduates of junior golf programs and the very competitive collegiate circuits, which afford a good deal of tournament seasoning.

Membership on the PGA TOUR is based on performance, and the most common means of a player becoming a member is through one of the two yearly Qualifying Schools. Held normally in June and October, the Qualifying Schools are competitions at which players earn their coveted "cards". Since 500 to 650 players apply for each Qualifying School, the field is reduced to a manageable size for the Final School at five or six 72-hole Regional Qualifiers.

The Final School, another 72-hole tournament, is an intense and pressure-packed four days of golf, since only a limited number of "cards" are awarded. The number varies, but most recently cards have been issued to the low 25 scorers and those tied for 25th.

Once players are members, the entire, colorful PGA TOUR schedule awaits them. And the schedule offers the chance to sample many of the truly fine golf courses in the nation . . . and to compete for considerable sums of money. The competition is fierce and the stakes are high.

PGA TOUR members are categorized into two main groups — exempt and non-exempt players. The exempt players are those whose performance in the past has gained them automatic entry, should they so choose, into all but a handful of invitational or special events. The non-exempt players, however, must earn their way into each tournament via Monday Qualifiers.

The number of positions in the tournament field available to these Monday Qualifiers varies from week to week, depending on the number of exempt players who decide to play. The more exempt players in the field, the fewer spots available for the non-exempt players. The size of the normal tournament field varies from 144 to 156, depending on daylight available.

In the typical tournament week, Monday is reserved for qualifying. Tuesday is practice day, and on Wednesday the tournament sponsor plays host to a large Pro-Am tournament, with 52 PGA TOUR members and their amateur partners competing in a bestball event. It's a chance for the amateur player to get acquainted with his professional heroes in an enjoyable day which is normally capped by a festive party or dinner.

On Thursday, the competition begins in earnest. A full field of the best golfers in the world take aim at the sizable prize list and the real target — a victory. The level of competition on the PGA TOUR has risen dramatically over the last 25 years, and its depth of talent is very evident in the list of players — two dozen — who have won their first PGA TOUR tournament in the last two years.

During the first two rounds of play, the field is geared toward making the cut. The field is reduced (cut) to the low 70 scorers and ties for 70th after the first two days' and 36 holes of play. Those who score well enough remain to compete over two more days and 36 additional holes, often with a nationwide television audience looking on, in pursuit of victory and the sizable checks which accompany high finishes.

Tournament operations on-site are under the guidance of Deputy Commissioner Clyde Mangum and Tournament Director Jack Tuthill. Familiar to millions of golf television viewers, Mangum and Tuthill and the tournament staff are responsible for the day to day functioning of the tournament and the rulings, which from time to time are necessary as play progresses.

But each tournament is also dependent on sizable numbers of volunteer workers who operate a dozen or more committees, handling parking, concessions, scoring duties and the myriad services which make PGA TOUR events a big-league sports attraction. Virtually all PGA TOUR events are operated by non-profit or charitable groups, with the proceeds benefiting a wide range of charities and community services. During 1980, sponsors of PGA TOUR events produced more than $5 million for such beneficiaries.

At the end of each season, the 60 leading money winners become exempt players, as do all players at the time they win a tournament. Other players remain exempt for extended periods, their exemptions stemming from victory in specific events. Winners of the Tournament Players Championship, the World Series of Golf, the U.S. Open, the Masters and the PGA Championship are granted exemptions for 10 years.

Also at the end of each season, the leading 160 money winners are assured of keeping their playing rights — their "cards". Players in their first year of competition must earn within $2,000 of the player in the 160th position on the money list to maintain their cards. Those who do not meet these performance guidelines are no longer members. They must then return to Qualifying School in order to return to the PGA TOUR.

The superstars of the PGA TOUR — Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Watson — are household names. And they are getting plenty of competition from new stars like Ben Crenshaw, Andy Bean, Curtis Strange, George Burns and Jerry Pate.

Wherever the PGA TOUR goes, there is the color and excitement of the professional golf at its finest.

The Language of the PGA TOUR

Every sport has its own unique terminology, but few can match the colorful tapestry of words which has developed over the more than 400 years of golf history. Some terms, such as track iron, have sprung up, then been made obsolete and are no longer heard. Others, such as birdie, have become such an integral part of the game that it would be impossible to describe a round of golf without them.

Here is a look into some of the formal and often lighthearted language of the PGA TOUR:

ACE — a hole-in-one.

AIR MAIL — a shot which travels beyond the green.

BEACH — sand trap or bunker.

BIRDIE — one stroke under par on a hole.

BLADE — slang for putter; also, a shot struck near the bottom of the face.

BOGEY — one stroke over par on a hole.

BUNKER — sand trap.

CADDIE — one who carries a player's bag.

CARPET — the green.

CUP — target of putts on the green.

CUT — reduction of a tournament field, usually after 36 holes of play.

CUTTY SARK — an intentional fade; a less aggressive shot where accuracy is important.

DANCE FLOOR — another term for the green.

DIVOT — clump of grass taken in making a shot.

DRAIN — a long putt which goes in.

DRAW — a shot which turns slightly from right to left. A mild hook.

EAGLE — two under par on a hole.

EWELL GIBBONS — a shot which goes far into the trees or rough.

FACE — the portion of the clubhead with which the ball is struck.

FADE — a shot which turns slightly from left to right.

FAIRWAY — closely cropped grassy area between the tee and the green.

FAT — a shot during which the ground is struck first, causing it to fall short.

FLAG — marker indicating location of the pin.

FLAGSTICK — staff, standing in the cup, on which the flag is flown.

FLIER — a shot which goes farther than intended, caused by a fluffy lie.

FOLLOW-THROUGH — finish of the swing after striking the ball.

FRINGE — slightly longer grassy area surrounding the green.

FROG-HAIR — same as fringe.

FURNITURE — term referring to fairway woods; wooden-headed clubs.

GARBAGE — area of extreme rough, off the fairway.

GREEN — closely-mown area of grass in which the cup is placed.

GRINDER — a player who works extremely hard on every shot, said to be "grinding".

GRIP — the position of the hands on the club.

HAZARD — bunker, water or other golf course feature from which play is either very difficult or impossible.

HEAT — pressure of competition.

The Language of the PGA TOUR (cont'd.)

HOOK — a shot which turns from right to left, often too sharply. A severe draw.

JUICE — backspin on the ball, imparted by the club at impact.

JUNGLE — the rough; severe rough.

KNUCKLEBALL — a low, driving shot caused by a thin hit.

LOOP — a swing during which the takeaway transcribes an arc different from that of the forward motion.

NAILS — golf shoes, so called because of the spikes on the bottom.

ON THE SCREWS — a shot hit firmly and well, on the face of the club.

PASS — a swing.

PEG — a tee; to tee the ball up.

PIN — the flagstick and cup on the green.

PUNCH — an intentionally low, driving shot particularly effective in the wind.

RED GRANGE — a round of 77, which was Red Grange's jersey number.

ROPE-TO-ROPE — a big, sweeping hook, said to travel from gallery ropes on the right to or beyond the gallery ropes on the left.

ROTOR — a corkscrew-like follow-through.

ROUGH — areas outside the fairway from which play is difficult.

ROUND — play of 18 holes of golf. One day's competition.

SHADE — the rough, off the fairway and under the trees.

SHOOTER — like a flier, a shot which travels farther than intended.

SHRIMP — slang for a hook.

SIRLOIN — slang for a ball with a Surlyn cover.

SLAM DUNK — a long, difficult putt which seemingly dives into the cup.

SLICE — a severe fade, a shot which swings widely from left to right.

SWEET SPOT — center of face of club.

TEE — a wooden peg on which the ball is placed; also the closely cropped grass area from which play on a hole is initiated.

THIN — a shot struck near the bottom of the clubface.

TRAP — area of sand, often called a bunker. A hazard.

TROMBONES — a round of 76, as in "76 Trombones".

WOOD — wooden-headed club.

X — any score worse than double-bogie on a hole.

A Brief History of the PGA TOUR

The precise start of the PGA TOUR defies documentation. We know, for example, that professionals competed against each other from the earliest days of the game in this country. We know, too, that the first United States Open, held in 1895 at Newport, R.I., attracted a field of 10 professionals and one amateur. A second professional tournament, the Western Open, was first held in 1899. It has now observed its 75th anniversary and continues to thrive on the PGA TOUR with a youthful spirit.

However, it would be stretching history beyond reason to say the PGA TOUR started with the Western Open in 1899 because there was not a "tour" at that time. Tournaments continued to spring up across the country during the first decade of this century but they lacked continuity. American-born professionals were rapidly improving and, in 1911, John McDermott became the first home-bred to win the U.S. Open.

In 1913 a commercially-backed "tour" by Englishmen Harry Vardon and Ted Ray helped to popularize the game in this country as the pair attracted "record" crowds everywhere they played. That September a 20-year-old "local boy," Francis Ouimet, defeated both of the visitors in a playoff for the United States Open Championship at Brookline, Mass., and his victory became a golf benchmark. Suddenly, golf became Page One news and a game for everyone.

The forerunner of today's PGA TOUR is traced to the early Twenties when, in the winter, tournaments were held on the West Coast, Texas, and Florida. Golfers played their way into the East and up to Pinehurst in the spring. Those years have been recalled by Johnny Farrell, one of the most active players of that decade and the next, as well as the 1928 U.S. Open champion: "Those tournaments gave the boys some activity in the off-season because most were busy at their clubs in the summer. The summer was when the golf associations would hold regional and national title events."

Resorts, hotels, and Chambers of Commerce realized the publicity value that professional golf brought to their facilities and more tournaments sprang up. Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, and Bobby Jones became folk heroes and the Tour was taking shape.

By the Thirties the Tour was growing, and with the PGA of America providing leadership, it attracted throngs despite the financially depressed years at the beginning of the decade. One statistic from those days stands out now with economic poignancy: Paul Runyan was the leading money winner of 1934 with $6,767. Late in the decade the name of Sam Snead started to appear in headlines with regularity. Then, as the Forties started, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, and a host of others gained fame.

After World War II, the Tour became more structured than ever before and continued to grow in popularity until it exploded as the Fifties were turning into the Sixties. (Elsewhere in this Tour Book, our records such as leading money winner, growth of our purses, etc., reflect this growth.)

About this time television began playing a dual role. Telecasts of PGA TOUR events inspired millions to try the game, and, at the same time, the TV rights fees sent purses rolling upward. The bulk of rights fees, which are distributed by the PGA TOUR to all co-sponsors, have gone back into purses, accounting for the doubling of prize money in the last decade.

It was late in 1968 when the touring professionals picked up the reins of control of the Tour. Joseph C. Dey was the first Commissioner of what was then called the Tournament Players Division. He served from early 1969 through February 28, 1974, and was succeeded by Deane R. Beman, who took office on March 1, 1974.

During the Beman administration the value of tournament purses have escalated and are likely to reach $14 million by 1981. The PGA TOUR operation has become more business-like and professional. Two agronomists have been added to the staff to provide turf management advice and assistance to all events. The Tournament Players Championship, the players' own, has become one of the most significant events on the Tour and the new World Series of Golf has provided a climax to the season.

The greatest advancement of all was unveiled in October 1980 with the official dedication and opening of the multi-million dollar Tournament Players Club and the new National Headquarters building for the PGA TOUR, in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla. There is more on the Tournament Players Club and Course elsewhere in the Tour Book.

THE TOURNAMENT PLAYERS CLUB

The 18th hole of the Tournament Players Club swings left alongside the lake. Spectator mounds border the entire right side of the 428-yard, par four hole, while the clubhouse overlooks the scene from the background.

Since the PGA TOUR moved to northeastern Florida in February of 1979, full effort has been directed to the completion of a remarkable new golf course which is destined to have far-ranging impact on the world of golf. The Tournament Players Club at Sawgrass was opened on October 24, 1980, and is the new home for the Tournament Players Championship as well as for the new PGA TOUR National Headquarters, which was dedicated 11 days prior to the opening of the club.

Designed by noted and innovative architect Pete Dye, the Tournament Players Club provides a scenic and balanced competitive challenge as well as meeting two other key criteria for the course: that it offer the very best in spectator vantage points and visual access; and that it incorporate unique design features which require far less maintenance than normal 18-hole golf courses.

Architect Dye accomplished both of these unique requirements in the 6,950-yard course which is located on a 415-acre site southeast of Jacksonville, at Sawgrass in Ponte Vedra, FL. The par-72 layout has been characterized as a blend of Harbour Town and Pine Valley, with touches of Scottish links.

As the home of the TPC, it is a landmark of unique design and construction, with the landscape dominated by large spectator mounds which afford unprecedented viewing opportunities. The term "stadium golf" has been applied, and justifiably so. An estimated 30,000 fans are able to view play on the 18th hole, which is bracketed by long, elevated spectator areas.

Ground was broken on the project on February 12, 1979, and the course was dedicated 20 months later. Approximately one million cubic yards of earth were moved in creating some 35 acres of lakes and canals and the spectator areas.

The heavily-wooded area features a most-unique combination of foliage, including live oak, palm, pine, sweet gum and magnolia trees. Indeed, the Tournament Players Club seems set off in a world all its own.

The complex includes provision for up to 100 acres of spectator parking, and the practice area includes a range covering 18 acres. The putting green is a massive 30,000 square feet. Yet on the course, there are less than 45 acres of planted tee, fairway and green area, far less than the 90 to 140 acres of a typical course.

The clubhouse is a modern 37,500-square-foot structure which sits atop a man-made berm, affording broad vistas of the course and practice areas. The three-level structure provides comfortable dining and lounge areas, locker room facilities, pro shop, conference and meeting rooms as well as cart and general storage.

In addition to serving as the home of the Tournament Players Championship, the club serves a large national membership which begins with every member of the PGA TOUR and includes a great many of the people directly involved with PGA TOUR events across the country. The membership roles included some 3,000 persons at the start of the year, and that number is expected to more than double in the next two years.

At the north end of the complex, just beyond the first green, sits the PGA TOUR's new National Headquarters. The 15,000-square-foot structure represents the realization of Commissioner Berman's dream of establishing a permanent home for the executive offices of the PGA TOUR.

Ground was broken on the Headquarters Building in May, and the modern wood and glass structure was completed by early October. The spacious structure, dedicated on October 13, 1980 provides modern and efficient quarters for the headquarters staff.

Typical of the Tournament Players Club, the par three 13th hole, a 173-yard test, offers a bulkheaded and undulating green with spectator mounds affording an excellent view of the action.

Wee Links: A Special Course for Beginning Players

The PGA TOUR'S Wee Links Golf Course is an innovative golf facility located at the Walt Disney World Golf Resort at Lake Buena Vista, FL.

Constructed with funds provided by the PGA TOUR on land donated by Walt Disney World, the prototype facility is aimed at bringing young people into the game of golf. A complete program incorporating lessons in the fundamentals and etiquette of the game, it is designed to make an introduction to the game of golf reasonable in cost and comfortable for youngsters who have no prior experience with the game.

A key element of the course, which offers six holes, is the use of synthetic tees and greens. The "Mod Sod" synthetic turf is the product of Playfield Industries, making use of a fiber produced by Chevron Chemical Company. The greens are top-dressed, and perform admirably in terms of minimum upkeep, reaction of shots hit to them and putting characteristics.

The six-hole layout, which is 1,525 yards in length, offers two par-3 holes, three par-4 holes and one par-5. It is situated on a 25-acre plot near Disney's Magnolia Course.

It is hoped that the prototype Wee Links will serve as a model for many similar courses around the country. With its virtually maintenance-free tees and greens, the Wee Links course may be applicable for municipal parks and recreation departments, where the cost of upkeep of traditional courses would be prohibitive.

The PGA TOUR's Wee Links Golf Course at the Walt Disney World Golf Resort is an innovative prototype facility which makes use of synthetic tees and greens. The six-hole, 1,525-yard course is designed to provide an easy introduction to the game of golf for beginning young players.

VANTAGE SCOREBOARD: Putting Fans in Touch with the Action

There's a new look to PGA TOUR tournaments this year, a look which brings fans — anywhere on the course — into closer touch with the action.

The Vantage Scoreboard, a modern electronic scoring and information system sponsored by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, is the most fundamental change in the lot of the spectator in tournament golf since the advent of the hand-operated leaderboard.

Developed by the PGA TOUR Marketing Department, the Vantage Scoreboard incorporates the latest in micro-processor technology. It can serve every single hole on the course, with one large leader-information board and up to 20 leader-status information boards.

Veteran watchers of tournament golf could sometimes tell, by the crowd's reaction, that a certain player two fairways away had birdied a hole. Now there is no question, since such items of interest can be flashed up on all boards around the course in seconds.

Powered by a redundant computer system and incorporating both scoring, or digital, and graphics software, the Vantage Scoreboard provides basic scoring information as well as biographical notes on players and the course, tournament or PGA TOUR records, and statistics.

The graphics capabilities of the system mean that photographs of players, tournament logos or specially designed messages may be displayed around the course on the boards.

As players proceed around the course, their current status — relation to par for the day and for the tournament — is displayed at the hole they are playing. And once they finish that hole, that information is updated and transferred in sequence to the board at the following hole.

In the meantime, the system can bring spectators up to date with events of significance anywhere else on the course. If Tom Watson scores an eagle two on the par-four 15th hole, for example, that information can be displayed quickly on every board on the course. If Jerry Pate finishes his round with a record nine birdies in succession, that, too, can be flashed to all the boards.

Able to format and display new messages within seconds, the Vantage Scoreboard is bringing the ebb and flow of PGA competition to spectators in a fresh, exciting — and rapid — way.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Winner, 1963 Trans-Mississippi Amateur, Northern California Open.

George Archer wishes he didn't have to keep making comebacks, but he is delighted to know he still can make them.

During his fine career, George has had to battle back from severe physical problems on several occasions, and he has always made it when a lesser man would have thrown in the towel.

Twice in the last six years, George has had major surgery. In 1975, he underwent the knife to repair a torn tendon in his left wrist and his effectiveness in 1974, 1975 and part of 1976 was seriously affected.

He had an excellent 1977, winning $113,944, but he then encountered a back problem that required surgery in early 1979. He had two discs fused and it wasn't until July of that year that he was able to return to the front line. Because of the problem, though, he only won a total of $16,941 in 1978 and 1979.

Feeling well again, he came back in 1980 and managed to slip into the 60th position on the money list, and thus assure himself of exempt status this year.

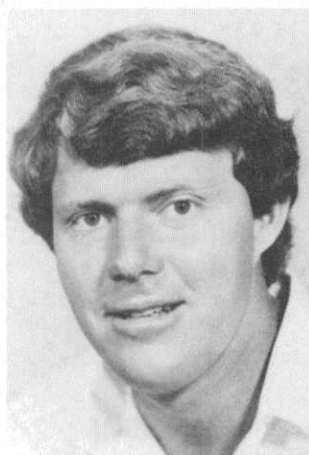

As discouraging as it must have been for him, the lanky Archer never let his problems get him down. "I don't let anything bother me," he said. "I'm just happy to be out here and playing decently again."

Exceptionally tall men like Archer seldom play the game with excellence, and no other man standing 6-feet-5 has accomplished what George has in golf. A legendary putting stroke has helped overcome whatever shortcomings tall men are supposed to experience.

Archer began playing golf at age 12 around his native San Francisco and he gathered an exceptional amateur record before he turned pro 13 years later. In 1963 alone he won the Trans-Mississippi Amateur, the Northern California Open and the San Francisco City title, reached the semifinals of the U.S. Amateur and was low amateur for the third straight year in the Lucky International in his home town.

As a pro he has won 12 events, including three in 1968, but the year following was his most memorable when he captured the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am and his one major championship when he beat out Billy Casper, George Knudson and Tom Weiskopf to take the Masters.

1980 STATISTICS: 1st, Birdie Leaders, 388. 3d, Par Breakers, .210. 4th, Scoring Average, 70.73.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: 1974 Eastern Amateur and Falstaff Amateur champion. 1975 Dixie Amateur and Western Amateur champion, semi-finalist U.S. Amateur. All-America selection and captain of University of Florida golf team.

Awesome is a word used frequently to describe Andy Bean's golf game, and when the big fellow is on his game, he is exactly that.

When he won the 1979 Atlanta Classic, he had a brilliant 61 in the third round and won by eight strokes over runner-up Joe Inman with a 23-under par score of 265.

Last year, he put on a similar performance in the Hawaiian Open, using a second-round 63 as the springboard to a 22-under par 266 and a three-stroke victory over Lee Trevino. Andy not only has the ability to drive the ball for great distances, but he continually amazes his peers with his fine touch around the greens.

It was that combination that enabled him to amass 388 birdies in 1980, and that easily was the best on Tour for that category in the PGA TOUR'S Official Statistics.

Three times Andy finished second last year, and it was his misfortune to have others do to him, what he has done to them. Jack Nicklaus won the PGA Championship by seven over Andy. Larry Nelson won the Atlanta Classic by seven over Andy and Don Pooley; and Scott Simpson finished the Western Open five strokes up.

Nevertheless, Andy did have his best financial year, winning $269,033 for fourth place.

In his first Tour victory at Doral, Andy led all four days on the Blue Monster course, shooting 67-67-71-72—277. The win became a birthday present; he turned 24 on the final day, March 13.

During his rookie year of 1976, Bean's play was disappointing, especially to himself. "It was mainly temperament," he says. "I knew I had the game to play out here, but when I'd make a mistake I'd get hot at myself, and that would make everything worse. I wasn't able to manage my game."

Andy certainly had the background to become a professional golfer. As a youngster, he lived on Jekyll Island, Ga., where his father was associated with a golf course. When he was 15, the family moved to Lakeland, Fla., where his father bought a course.

"I've been lucky," says Bean, "because my parents never made me do much work around the course. They let me go play." And play he did.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—5; in money—0; stroke avg.—76.10.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: 1952 and 1963 PGA Player of the Year. Member 1959, 1963, 1965 and 1967 Ryder Cup teams. Winner, 1979 Legends Tournament (with Roberto DeVicenzo as partner).

It is seldom that a man can play on the PGA TOUR for parts of four decades, but that is exactly what Julius Boros accomplished this past year.

He was a late arrival, too, being nearly 30 years of age when he started in 1950.

It has been a grand-and-glorious career, with 18 Tour victories that includes two United States Opens and a PGA Championship. His first victory was the 1952 Open at Northwood in Dallas. It was 11 years later that he bested Jacky Cupit and Arnold Palmer in the Open at Brookline, Mass., in a playoff.

He had to beat back the challenge of Palmer again in the PGA at Pecan Valley in San Antonio. A few weeks later, at age 48, he won the Westchester Classic, and that was his last Tour triumph.

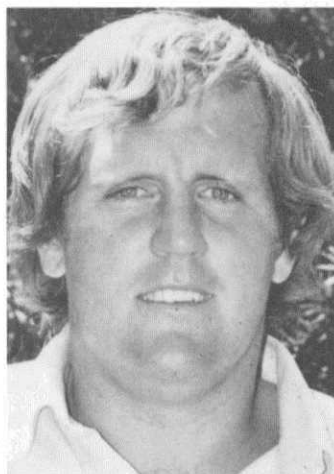

Gene Littler kept him from two other victories. Gene defeated Julius in playoffs for the 1969 Greater Greensboro Open and the 1975 Westchester Classic titles.

The last few years, he has been forced to cut back on his schedule due to hip and back problems. As a result, in 1980, he only played in five Tour events and did not qualify for the final 36 holes in any of them.

In 1979, he did savour a taste of victory, when he joined with Roberto deVicenzo to win the Legends tournament in Austin, Texas. Now, since he is past 60 years of age, Julius plans to play in a few Senior events. He still is one of the all-time favorites among the older folks in the gallery.

Julius was heading toward a career in accounting when the lure of golf and the Tour pulled him from behind his desk.

George Burns will tell you that there were times when he wondered if he could continue on the PGA TOUR. Sure, he was making a good living, but he wasn't enjoying the total success that he had expected.

The breakthrough came in the fall of 1979 when he played exceptionally well, teaming with Ben Crenshaw, to win the Walt Disney World National Team Championship. It was his first victory on the Tour, and he said at the time, the lessons learned that week would stand him in good stead for the future.

Last year, the Tour was only in its fourth week when George applied some of that new found confidence and he won the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, one of his favorite events. He was two strokes in back of David Edwards entering the final round at Pebble Beach, and his three-under 69 gave him a one-stroke margin over Dan Pohl.

He went on to his finest year, by far. He had 12 top 10 finishes, including a tie for second in the Greater Greensboro Open and a tie for third in the MONY-Tournament of Champions. He won $219,928, well over $100,000 more than he had ever won in a single season.

The PGA TOUR'S Official Statistics reveal a couple of reasons. He tied for second among the Putting Leaders with an average of 28.93 per round; and was third in Birdies, with 374.

Burns was too busy playing all sports in high school on Long Island to concentrate on golf. He lettered in football and basketball and entered the University of Maryland with the primary purpose of playing football, in addition to earning a degree.

He was a defensive end for the Terps, but recalls, "I realized I wasn't going to go anywhere in football." He concentrated on golf from his freshman year forward.

However, it was a full year after his graduation before he blossomed as a force in amateur golf. While working for two years in the New York City area in sales and promotion, he had a chance to play often, and in 1973 he won the Canadian Amateur. The following year Burns won the Porter Cup, North-South Amateur and the New York State Amateur.

Burns was selected to play on the Walker Cup team in 1975 and also on the U.S. side in the World Amateur team championship. "Playing for my country on those teams always will be among the biggest enjoyments I've had in sports," he says today.

After six years on the PGA TOUR, big, loveable George Cadle made his first big surge in 1980, moving into 55th place on the official money list and thus gaining exempt status for the first time. He won $75,265, well above anything he had ever done before.

He wishes he had a simple explanation for it. "The only thing I can tell you," he said, "is that early in the spring, I discovered that the shaft in my driver was very, very stiff. I changed it, and shortly after, I started to play well. Along about Milwaukee, everything seemed to fall into place."

That it did, because he proceeded to make 10 of his last 11 cuts, starting with the Greater Milwaukee Open.

George is easy to identify in a crowd; with his round, cherubic face and his large western-style hat.

Although he makes his living playing golf, his friends believe his heart is on the auto race tracks of the world. "I've always liked cars," he said, "and when I was growing up in Kentucky, it was something all my buddies were involved in, so I was involved, too."

George started to play golf at about age seven in his hometown of Middlesboro, Ky. The junior dues at the local nine-hole course were only $12-a-year. "I'd play until I ran out of golf balls, and then I'd rake the creeks to find some more," he recalls. "I played every day."

After he was graduated from high school, he was lured to the University of Houston, and was in the freshman class with John Mahaffey and Tom Jenkins. After three semesters, he transferred to the University of Tennessee.

Early in 1970, an old friend from Middlesboro and former Tour player, Moon Mullins, invited him to the new resort, Half Moon Bay, Calif.

From there, George played the mini-Tours, and three times tried to obtain his PGA TOUR card before finally succeeding in the fall of 1974.

"I kept getting a little better each year," he said, "until 1978, and then I slipped back." That was when he started to work a little more on his game, and it paid off.

He prefers to fade the ball off the tee, but believes his irons are the strongest part of his game. "I tied for 16th in hitting greens in regulation," he said, "so I must be a pretty good iron player."

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—9; in money—0; stroke avg.—78.50.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: 1966 and 1970 PGA Player of the Year. Winner 1960, 1963, 1965, 1966, and 1968 Vardon Trophy. Winner 1974 Lancombe (France) and 1975 Italian Open. 1961 through 1975 Ryder Cup team. Won 1977 Mexican Open. Captain, 1979 Ryder Cup team.

Billy Casper suffered through his poorest year since he started to play golf as a youngster in the San Diego area. Physical ailments plagued him from the start of the year, and in nine appearances on the Tour, he never survived the 36-hole cut.

For the first time since he started on Tour in 1955, he did not win any money, but Billy managed to smile his way through it, without a complaint, each time he tried to tee it up.

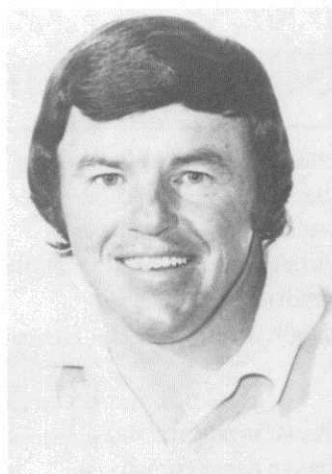

There have been so many highlights to this Hall-of-Famers career that some of the better ones tend to get overlooked. Lee Trevino won the Vardon Trophy last year with a brilliant 69.73 average. You have to go back to 1968, when Casper had a 69.82 mark, to find the last man to shatter the 70-stroke barrier. Billy won the prestigious Vardon Trophy five times.

He also qualified to play on eight straight Ryder Cup teams, from 1961 through 1975. As a reward for his past performances, he was named to captain the 1979 Ryder Cup team that went on to defeat Great Britain-Ireland-Europe.

When Billy passed the $1 million mark in winnings in 1970, only Arnold Palmer had done it before. Here is a man with 51 PGA TOUR crowns, including the 1959 and 1966 United States Opens and the 1970 Masters. They did not come easily. He had to defeat Palmer in the 1966 Open, and Gene Littler in the 1970 Masters.

There have been few in the game any better than this man, and he may have been the finest putter of all time.

Jim Colbert is a perfect example of the old axiom that if you want something bad enough and are willing to work hard enough at it, your chances of attaining it are pretty good.

In Jim's case, his chances not only were pretty good, they were down right excellent, and as a result, he had a superb year in 1980.

He has suffered with knee and back problems in recent years, but when the pain became bad enough, he'd just grit his teeth and hit a few more golf balls. At the end of the year, he had $150,411 to show for his determination, and a victory in the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open.

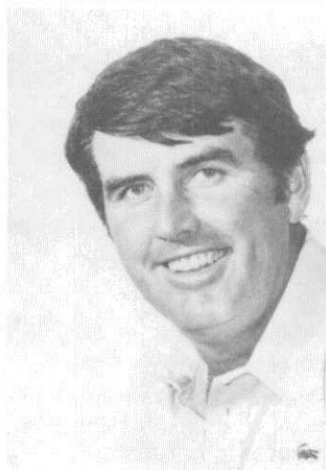

His triumph was in the longest tournament of the year, so patience played an important role, too. Rain-and-flooding conditions pushed the final round back to Tuesday afternoon and Jim finally won by four strokes over Dan Halldorson with a 22-under par total of 270 (par 73 at the Tucson National).

It was his first individual victory since the 1974 American Golf Classic at Firestone Country Club when he defeated Ray Floyd, Gay Brewer and Forrest Fezler in a playoff.

To win that much money, you have to do other things well, too, and Jim did. He was second to Tom Watson in the MONY-Tournament of Champions and tied for third in the Bay Hill Classic.

Although he was born in New Jersey, he grew up in Kansas and was an all-state football player in high school and winner of the Kansas State Junior golf title at age 11. He entered Kansas State University on a football scholarship, but decided that golf would be his game after he finished second in the 1964 NCAA championship.

Charles Coody decided late in 1979 that it was time to go to work on his golf game. He did so, and stayed with it through most of 1980, and the reward was a return to the top 60 money winners, an honor he had enjoyed for 13 straight years until 1978 and 1979.

"That was the main difference," Charles said. "I just went back to work on my game."

He wasn't about to make any excuses for those two off years, but it was no secret that he was deeply involved in a new complex in his hometown of Abilene, Texas. Now completed, he is the Director of Golf at the plush Fairway Oaks Golf and Racquet Club.

Since starting on Tour in 1963, he has claimed three victories, the most impressive being the 1971 Masters Tournament. That came two years after he gave a brilliant performance at the Augusta National for 69 holes. He led by one, and then decided to play defensively and protect the lead. The result was three straight bogeys and a tie for fifth. Two years later, he had no such idea. He closed birdie-birdie-par-par and won by two strokes over Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller.

Coody had an excellent amateur record around his home state and won approximately 30 titles in Texas alone. While serving a three-year hitch in the Air Force, he qualified for the 1960 and 1961 U.S. Opens. In 1962, he reached the semi-finals of the U.S. Amateur.

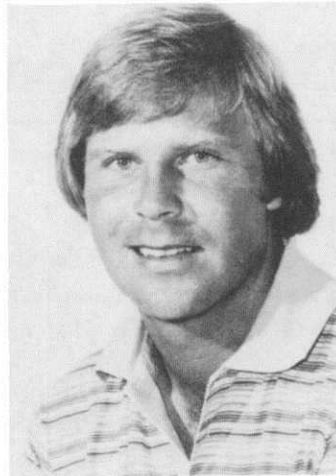

Interestingly enough, he was graduated from Texas Christian University in 1960, and he went there on a basketball scholarship, because they didn't have any for golf.

Always a very consistent player, Coody moved in with the $1 million winners this past year. His best single year was 1971, when he won $94,947 — plus another $50,000 in the old World Series of Golf.

During 1980, his best chance for victory came in the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic as he tied with Bruce Lietzke for second, two strokes in back of winner Johnny Miller. He was five-strokes back when the last day started, and a splendid 67 was worth $26,400.

Earlier in the year, he had a tie for fourth in the Phoenix Open for his only other top 10 finish. His scoring average for the year came down nearly a half-a-stroke, and that was enough to let him collect $73,918 and return to the top 60.

When you are victory oriented, it can be frustrating to win only once a year, but Ben Crenshaw admits that if every year was like 1980, he would not be too disappointed.

As a matter of fact, his last two years have been similar, indicating that this young man has found a high level of consistency.

He has finished fifth on the money list in each of the last two years, and his total of $237,727 for 1980 was only $1,000 more than he won the year before.

When you are a competitor such as Ben, though, you don't like to wait until your last start to taste victory. That is what he did, winning the Anheuser-Busch Classic in Napa, Calif., his final individual tournament on the Tour for the year.

He came close again, nearly winning two of the big ones, the Tournament Players Championship and the Colonial National Invitation. He was only one in back of Lee Trevino in the TPC, and one in back of Bruce Lietzke in the Colonial.

At one point in his career, Ben was not considered a good driver but that has changed the last couple of years, thanks to many hours of hard work. Now, this is one of the better parts of his game. As a result, he says, "I'm becoming a more consistent player, one who doesn't make a lot of bogeys." In support of his belief, he finished in the top 10 in five different statistical categories.

He said he went to the Anheuser-Busch with only one thought in mind: "To have a good time." He did that, appearing very relaxed all week. He later admitted, "Maybe I should try to develop this attitude more often. Sometimes you try so hard you get tensed up."

Crenshaw came on the Tour in the fall of 1973 after compiling an amateur record seldom authored by anyone. He won the NCAA Championship three times, sharing it with University of Texas teammate Tom Kite in 1972.

In his first appearance after earning his Player's Card for the PGA TOUR, he won the San Antonio-Texas Open. He followed with a second place in the 1973 World Open, then a 144-hole, $500,000 event.

His biggest year was 1976 when he won three of his eight Tour titles and a high of $257,759. This past year he did reach a milestone, passing the $1 million mark in winnings.

About four years ago, Terry Diehl decided he needed to make a significant change in his golf game and enlisted the help of his good friend, Ken Venturi.

"It was kind of unnatural for awhile," Terry said, "but last year it started to jell, to be a part of me."

The result was a return to the top 60 money winners — 59th place, to be exact — and exempt status for this year. It was during the last half of the year that he started to play the way he felt he could.

"All my life, I've been a slow starter," he added. "I wish I knew why. As a kid, I would play poorly in the spring but well in late summer. Since I've been on Tour, I've always played better toward the end of the year."

That certainly was true in his rookie year of 1974. The final event of the year was the San Antonio-Texas Open, and he had won only $1,900 to that point. "I was so frustrated and depressed that I felt like skipping the tournament," he recalled.

He made it through the Monday qualifier with a 73, and then shot 68-65-65-71—269, 19-under, to win the tournament and collect $25,000. It was the second lowest 72-hole score of the year.

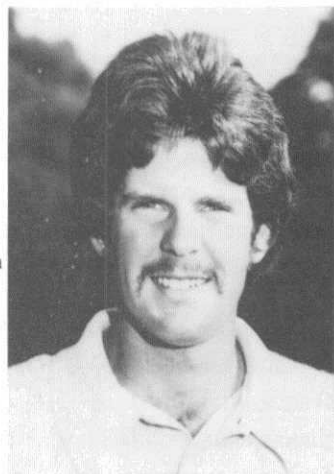

Terry started in the game at age 12. By the time he was 16, his father told him "to forget about some of the other sports and start hitting a lot of golf balls." He did just that, and became one of New York State's better amateurs, winning six state and city junior tournaments. In 1969, he won the State Amateur. He attended the University of Georgia as a pre-Med student, and in 1969, was second in the NCAA.

Another big moment in his career came in the 1976 IVB-Philadelphia Classic. He was tied with Tom Kite after 72 holes, but finally lost on the fifth extra hole.

Early this past year, he did tie for seventh in the Doral-Eastern Open, but it wasn't until late summer that most of his thrills arrived. He tied for 10th in the PGA Championship on his home course of Oak Hills in Rochester, but the rousing ovations that he received all week at nearly every green gave him many moments to remember forever.

Two weeks later he was sixth in the B.C. Open, and then back in San Antonio in late September, he chased Lee Trevino to the final green before finishing second alone. Trevino's closing 65 nipped him by one.

Danny Edwards focused a lot of his attention on Formula Ford auto racing in 1979, and the result was the poorest year of his golf career. He enjoyed the excitement of racing, and plans to continue doing it on a more limited basis, but his pride was hurt when he finished 120th on the money list.

"I went back to work on my golf game in 1980," he said, "and worked harder than I have in some time."

He was rewarded twice for his efforts. He finished 57th on the official money list to re-gain the exempt status he enjoyed in two other years, and then he finished the season in grand style, joining with younger brother David to win the Walt Disney World National Team Championship. They took the first-day lead with a 12-under par 60 and never were headed.

"I'll probably race in six-or-eight events," he said, "but I plan to concentrate more on my golf. I want to continue to improve."

Danny was 14 when he started to play golf, but he became so hooked on the game that he set his goal early of becoming a Tour player. At Oklahoma State, he won the 1972 and 1973 Big Eight championships; and in 1973 was named to the United States Walker Cup team. That same year, he was low amateur in the British Open.

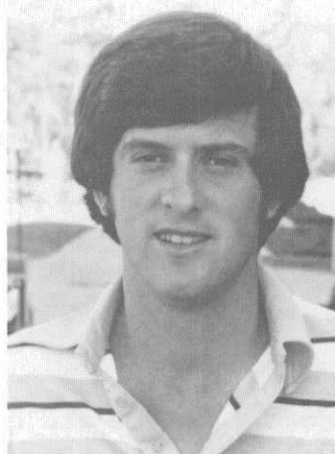

Danny turned professional later in 1973, but his first big disappointment came when he missed in his first attempt at the PGA TOUR'S Qualifying School. He went overseas to compete in 1974, and was ready for the School in the fall of 1974.

He had his biggest year on Tour in 1977 when he won the Greater Greensboro Open by four strokes over Larry Nelson and George Burns. He cashed checks in 22 of 27 starts that year, showing how consistent his game had become.

During his years on Tour, his brother David has been his biggest booster and helper. "David knows my game better than anyone, so he is the one who has always helped me, even before he came out on Tour."

Judging by the way they played at Walt Disney World, Danny and David, indeed, are on the verge of big things.

David Edwards knows exactly how he got started in golf. "I was about 12 years old," he said, "and I played because my brother Danny played. That's all there was to it."

Danny is five years older than David, "and all I did when I was growing up was tag along. I did whatever he did. He was the one who talked me into getting a set of clubs."

Last fall, they carried their brother relationship to the ultimate, winning the Walt Disney World National Team Championship.

"During the last round," David said, "I happened to notice a little kid trying to hit rocks with a stick. I thought, 'that's just the way I used to be.' When I was little, Mom and Dad would take me to the tournaments to see Danny play, but all I wanted to do then was just what that little kid was doing at Disney World."

David has enjoyed his share of success during his career, but he said it hasn't been easy. "At every level, from juniors, through high school, then college and now on the Tour, I have had to start at the bottom and work my way up. I haven't been any instant success."

He always found that success, though. He won the Oklahoma State Junior title in 1973, and won the National Collegiate championship for Oklahoma State in 1978, and twice was named to the collegiate All-America team. Lindy Miller, Tom Jones and Jaime Gonzales were OSU teammates.

While Danny has been his biggest booster and helper through the years, David also gave credit to Art Proctor, the head professional at the municipal course in Edmond for getting him started properly. He worked for Proctor during his high school years.

Although David did not show the same consistency of 1979, as he made the cut in 12 of 31 events as compared to 18 of 30 the year before, he did have a chance to win the Bing Crosby National Pro-Amateur.

He was one off the pace after the first round and was tied with Tom Kite after two with 67-69—136, eight-under par. Playing at Pebble Beach the third day, he had an even-par 72, and was in the lead at 208, two shots ahead of Gil Morgan and Larry Nelson. The last afternoon at Pebble, though, he could do no better than a 75, and tied for seventh.

Yet, the fact that he was close enough to smell the victory, was an experience he'll never forget. That experience was a helpful factor at Disney World.

Dave Eichelberger found the secret to winning again when he captured the Bay Hill classic on a bitter, cold windy March day, but it didn't come as much of a surprise. This lanky Texan has had the skills to win on the PGA TOUR, just as he displayed in winning the Greater Milwaukee Opens in 1971 and 1977.

While his season had its high-and-low points through the rest of the year, he did finish in a blaze of glory. He tied for 10th in the Anheuser-Busch Classic, tied for second in the Southern Open and tied for fourth in the Pensacola Open. In those three weeks, he won more than $32,000 and that gave him the tidy sum of $122,352 for the year; his best money year ever.

Some believe he set up his victory at Bay Hill at the end of 1979, when he finished third in the Buick-Goodwrench Open and then joined with Murle Breer to win the JC Penney Mixed Team Classic.

He started his victory march with rounds of 69, 66 and 70, and then, despite the Witch's wind, he managed a three-stroke margin while others were shooting high numbers. He later admitted that he put his Texas-born knowledge of the low, punch shot to good use during that long afternoon.

Dave started in the game at age 13 in the junior program at his family's club in Waco, Texas. It wasn't until he went to Oklahoma State that his game started to blossom. He reached the semi-finals of the 1964 U. S. Amateur at Canterbury and the next year, represented Uncle Sam on the Walker Cup and Americas Cup team.

He came out of the Tour's Qualifying School in 1967 and steadily worked his way toward a $108,312 year in 1971. That was his high point until 1980.

During the ensuing years, his game continued to have its peaks and valleys. Long off the tee and an excellent iron player, it seemed to depend on his putting. When he had the short stick going, he was dangerous.

This is the fifth time he has finished among the top 60 money winners, and it was his ability to score eagles that helped him to 1980 reward. He led to PGA TOUR Official Statistics with 16, and he accumulated most of those in the first three months of the year.

He was so proficient at making eagles that it prompted one of his colleagues to inquire, "How many Eichels does Eagleberger have now?"

It was a touching moment for Lee Elder in the fall of 1979 when he stood in front of the Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., representing his country in the Ryder Cup matches.

That was one of the goals he had set for himself many years ago, and now he has set his sights on making Uncle Sam's team, again. It has a special meaning for Lee now. His position on the 12-man team permits him to retain his exempt status for 1981, even though he suffered with a knee problem in 1980 and won only $17,693.

Many years ago, he injured the knee playing football, and the last couple of years, it has caused him considerable pain. Several times, he had to miss tournaments in order to have the fluid drained from the joint. As a result, his yearly winnings were the lowest since he started on Tour in 1968.

Lee has enjoyed a successful career, winning four times. The first was in the Monsanto Open in Pensacola. He birdied three of the last four holes to catch Peter Oosterhuis, and then won with and 18-foot birdie putt on the fourth extra hole. It earned Lee his first trip to the Augusta National for the 1975 Masters Tournament.

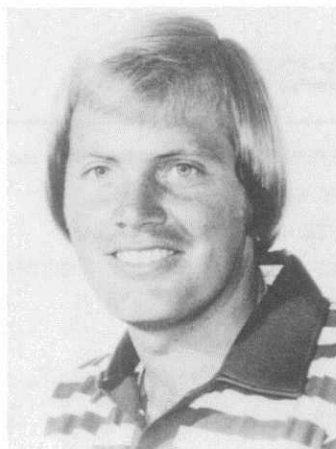

His biggest year was 1978, thanks to a hot streak in mid-summer. He tied with Lee Trevino in the Greater Milwaukee Open, and the playoff lasted for eight holes before Lee finally won. A month later, he birdied the final hole in the Westchester Classic to edge Mark Hayes by one.

Elder Qualified for the PGA TOUR in the fall of 1967, and in his first full year, he created considerable excitement as he tied Frank Beard and Jack Nicklaus at the end of regulation play in the American Golf Classic at Firestone Country Club. Beard was eliminated early, but Lee carried Jack until the fifth extra hole before bowing out.

This past year, Lee entered 26 tournaments, and although he did make the cut in 16, he could not pull his fine game together long enough to be a serious contender. As a result, his best finish was a tie for 26 in the PGA Championship. In the new Official Statistics, he tied for ninth in Sand Saves.

For the past 10 years, he has hosted the Lee Elder Celebrity Pro-Am tournament and all proceeds go to the Lee Elder Scholarship Foundation. The goal each year is to issue college grants to 12 worthy recipients. The last two have been held at the Langston Golf Club in northeast Washington, D.C.

Although a victory eluded Keith Fergus for a fourth straight year, the young man from Houston continued to be one of the most consistent players on the PGA TOUR.

He made the cut in all 23 of his 1980 starts, and over a two-year period, his streak reached 27 tournaments, only one behind pace-setting Tom Watson. In addition, Keith put together a string of 14 rounds at par or less, starting with the third round of the Phoenix Open and going through the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open, and that was the best on Tour in 1980.

These factors helped him to a $119,614 year, his best ever. In fact, since Keith started in January of 1977, he has increased his money winnings each year.

Three times he finished third, at the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, the Doral-Eastern Open, placing one shot shy of the Ray Floyd-Jack Nicklaus playoff; and in the United States Open at Baltusrol. He was a strong contender all week in the Open and received considerable world-wide attention as he battled Nicklaus, Isao Aoki, Watson and Lon Hinkle through the final holes.

"I usually don't make a lot of birdies," the University of Houston product said, "but it is seldom I have the ball in trouble, too."

In the Official Statistics, he tied for fourth among the Eagle Leaders with 11, and was sixth in the Par Breakers (percentage of holes played in sub-par figures). His scoring average of 70.75 was the fifth best on Tour, a full half-shot lower than his 1979 mark.

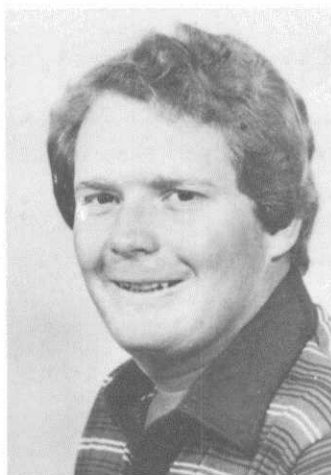

Keith started to play golf at age eight. "My Dad played a lot," he recalls, "and I would go out and caddy for him." He says his father and Lee Williams, the head pro at Killeen Municipal Course, helped him with his game through the early stages.

He played football and basketball through the first couple of years in high school, "but I started to concentrate on golf after that." He said he realized he enjoyed practicing golf more than he did practicing the other sports.

He won the Texas State Junior championship in 1971 and was runner-up in the state high school tournament the following year. He went to the University of Houston and gained All-American status. In the summer of 1975, he lost to Fred Ridley in the final of the United States Amateur.

He believes the strongest part of his game is his driving. "I found out a long time ago that it is easier to make par or birdie from the middle of the fairway than it is from the trees." Generally, he prefers to draw the ball, although he can work it both ways.

Until Ed Fiori won the Southern Open, the next-to-last event of his second full year on the PGA TOUR, he said he was ready to chalk up the time as a "learning experience."

On the basis of his performance in 1980, it appears as if he learned quite a bit about the game and life on the Tour. He increased his winnings to $79,488 and his ascension up the ladder has been steady since he was medalist in the Qualifying School in the fall of 1977.

The stocky Fiori started in the game at age seven. "We lived next to a course in Downey, Calif., and I used to sneak through the strands of barbed wire to play. About twice a week, they would catch me and my pal and chase us off. A neighbor had given me a few clubs to use."

After high school, Ed started to work at odd jobs around southern California, mainly in construction work. He also found enough time to play considerable golf, "wherever I could find a game."

One of those golf excursions took him to a tournament in Guadalajara, Mexico. He birdied the last four holes to get into a playoff with Craig Stadler and Jack Renner. Stadler won the playoff, but a University of Houston alumnus was there and was impressed. He recommended him to the Cougars.

"I had been out of high school for four years, so I went to Wharton Junior college for a semester, sat out a semester and then transferred to Houston."

His second year, the Cougars won the NCAA team title, and Ed was named to the All-American team. "Until then, I had not thought much about joining the PGA TOUR, but that was all the guys on the team talked about . . . getting on the Tour."

He dropped out of Houston in the spring of 1977, played in a few mini-Tour events and then headed for the Q-School.

He admits that he was "lucky" when he captured his first Tour victory at the Green Island Country Club in Columbus, Ga.

"I certainly wasn't expecting to win," he says of his playoff win over Tom Weiskopf. "There were some unusual things that happened to let me win, such as Mike Reid taking those bogeys on the final holes and Tom missing a four-footer on the first extra hole."

Only one word is needed to describe the play of Raymond Floyd over the years, and that is excellent. He is a master craftsman, a brilliant striker of the golf ball.

Even after 17 years on the Tour, he continues to be a dominant figure and in 1980 he won a career high of $192,993. A healthy portion of that came in his runner-up finish to Tom Watson in the World Series of Golf. A final-round 65 left him two in back of Tom, and was worth $55,000. That was the biggest single check of his outstanding career, even larger than he received in any of his 12 victories.

It was in mid-March that Ray gave the Tour a vital shot of excitement. In the Doral-Eastern Open, a final-round 66 left him tied with Jack Nicklaus and he won it with a birdie on the second extra hole. Ray was just off the edge of the green and Jack was in relatively close. It looked as if Jack was in command, but Raymond holed his shot for the sudden ending, and Jack missed his putt.

He went on to have nine top 10 finishes, and his stroke average of 71.53 was more than one full shot lower than the year before.

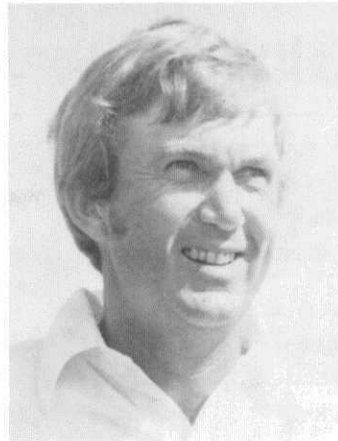

Floyd grew up in Ft. Bragg, N. C., the son of an Army man who now is co-owner of the Cypress Lakes Golf Club in Fayetteville. Although he was exposed to golf at an early age, Ray chose to pursue baseball until he won the National Jaycees Golf title in 1960. He turned pro the following year, joined the Tour in 1963 and won the St. Petersburg Open as a rookie. At age 20 years and six months, he was the third youngest ever to win on Tour.

Only twice, in 1972 and 1973, has he failed to finish among the top 60 money winners, but he rebounded from that "slump" to win more than $100,000 in 1974.

There have been numerous highlights to his career, but the most notable probably was the 1976 Masters Tournament. He won by eight strokes, and his total of 17-under par 271 equaled the tournament record set by Nicklaus in 1965.

In the Official Statistics for 1980, it is interesting to note that he finished well back in hitting Greens in Regulation, but his superb touch around the greens left him second to Bob Eastwood in Sand-Saves and fifth in putting with a 29.05 per round average.

It is likely that followers of the PGA TOUR will be asking the question for many years to come. How great a record could Al Geiberger have established if he had been able to play healthy all through his career?

As it is, the lanky graduate of the University of Southern California has established a rather enviable mark, winning 12 Tour events and well over $1 Million since starting in 1960.

First, it was a nervous stomach disorder that nearly ended his career late in the 1960s and early 1970s. He battled back from that to win the 1974 Sahara Invitational, ending a victory drought of more than eight years.

Just when his long irons were whistling with incredible accuracy, he was struck down again early in 1978 when he needed intestinal surgery, and then late in 1979 with knee surgery. Seemingly healthy again, he suffered a severe attack while in Vail, Colo., for the Jerry Ford Invitational in July of 1980 and emergency surgery had to be performed for the removal of his colon. In all, he underwent three separate operations in approximately two months.

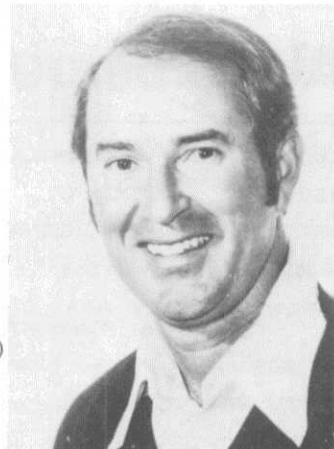

Up until that point, he had played in 18 events, but not with the same aggressiveness of years past.

As long as golf is played, Al will be remembered for the afternoon at the Colonial Country Club during the 1977 Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic when he became the first player ever to break 60 in a PGA TOUR event. He had a 13-under par 59. It came on June 10, during the second round and was a master blend of 11 birdies and one eagle. He used only 23 putts in the 30-29 effort, culminating in an eight footer for a birdie on the final hole.

He went on to win the tournament, although he had to hold off late challenges by Gary Player and Jerry McGee to do it.

Over the years, he has done well on the toughest tracks, such as Firestone Country Club in winning the 1965 American Golf Classic and the 1966 PGA Championship; 1975 Tournament Players Championship and the 1979 Colonial National Invitation, both at the Colonial Country Club in Fort Worth; and the 1976 Western Open at the Butler National.

Gibby Gilbert has known all along that it is concentration that separates the great players from the good ones. Twice during 1980, he reached that plateau reserved for the greats, and in both cases, he finished second.

At the Masters Tournament, he had final rounds of 68 and 67 to tie Jack Newton, four strokes in back of Seve Ballesteros. In the Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Classic, he closed with a 67 and finished two in back of Curtis Strange.

"I've never had a week of thinking, concentrating on the course like I did at Augusta," he said, "and I was close to that level at Westchester. Concentration never has been one of my strong suits, I'll admit, but there isn't any question about it; that's the one thing that makes the great players what they are."

His finish at Westchester let him reach a high mark in his career. It pushed him over $100,000, and he finished the year with $108,603.

Despite the lack of a given name — it's C. L. Gilbert, Jr. — Gibby began to make a name for himself in golf early in his native Chattanooga. He started in the game at age 13. He left the University of Chattanooga in 1962 to be married, and later accepted a job as assistant professional in Hollywood, Fla.

He went to the Qualifying School in 1967 and finished second to Bobby Cole. It was 2½ years later that he won his first event, the Houston Champions International in a playoff over Bruce Cramp-ton. Even today, he'll tell you "I wasn't a good player when I won then," but he certainly has become one since then.

In 1972, he suffered a setback, and finished 73rd on the money list. Faced with non-exempt status, he thought seriously about leaving the Tour, but stuck with it for one more year. He won $60,636 in 1973 for 48th place, and he has been a steady performer ever since. Only one other year did he drop from the top 60, and that was in 1977. He suffered rib injuries in the spring, and missed almost all of the summer tournaments. However, he retained his exempt status when he joined with Grier Jones late in the year and they won the Walt Disney World National Team title.

A highlight of his career came in 1973 at the World Open. He set a course-record 62 on Pinehurst No. 2. It shattered the best previous mark by three strokes.

Bob Gilder uncovered a new wave of confidence in his golf game last year and he realized he can now win even when his game is not at its best. During the Canadian Open at Royal Montreal, he had some problems with his driving and said he putted "awful" the last afternoon, yet he won by two strokes over Jerry Pate and Leonard Thompson.

"When I am playing well," he said, "I now can move the ball just about any way I want. It's a great feeling."

As a result, he has won a total of nearly $300,000 in the last two years.

His victory ended a 4½-year drought, but he said it didn't bother him to go that long without grabbing the brass ring. "I have different goals than some players," he explained. "I'm not a superstar, and I don't know if I want to be. I don't care for all the extra attention and publicity that goes with it. Sure, I want to be a very good player and recognized by my fellow players as one, but I also want to enjoy my privacy with my family."

Bob starred for the Arizona State University golf team — winning the 1973 Western Athletic Conference title — and was a teammate of Howard Twitty and Tom Purtzer. After he was graduated in 1973, he tried for his Tour card three times without success. Meanwhile, in 1974, he won the New Zealand Open in a playoff over Jack Newton and Bob Charles.

In the Fall of 1975, he did earn his playing privileges.

In his first start of 1976, he missed the cut in the Tucson Open. The next week at the Phoenix Country Club, he overtook Roger Maltbie the final afternoon to win by two strokes.

He became only the fourth first-year player to win more than $100,000, and would have been the "rookie-of-the-year," if Jerry Pate had not won the U.S. and Canadian Opens and $153,102.

He stumbled to $36,844 his sophomore year, and no one was more disappointed than he. "I knew that first year wasn't a fluke," he said, "but I didn't have a national amateur record when I came on Tour, and I wanted to prove to the others that I could play. I put too much pressure on myself.

"I really putted well that first year, and then I putted terrible the next. I lost all confidence and I couldn't remember what I did when I putted well," he said, now able to smile about it.

Along with his victory in 1980, Bob had a tie for second in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open. He led Tom Watson by one after three rounds, but let it slip away. A final-round 64 in the Michelob-Houston Open gave him a tie for third.

Foreign victories include 1970 French Open, 1970 Thailand Open, 1971 Caracas Open, 1971 Japan Open, 1975 Wills Masters, 1976 Chunichi Crowns Invitational (Japan), 1976 Picadilly World Match Play, 1977 Australian Open and 1977 South African PGA. 1978 Mexico Cup. 1979 West Lakes Classic (Australia); New Zealand Open.

Apparently, David Graham does not believe in winning golf tournaments the easy way; you know, building a big lead and coasting home.

When he won his first tournament in 1972, he had to defeat fellow Australian Bruce Devlin in a playoff in the Cleveland Open. Two years ago, when he won his biggest prize, the PGA Championship, he was sailing smoothly along, heading for a final-round 63, when he suffered a double-bogey six at the 72nd hole, permitting Ben Crenshaw to tie him. David then had to hole a 25 footer on the first extra hole to match Ben, and then won it on the third with a six footer for a birdie.

Last year, it was Tom Watson who had an apparent victory in the Memorial Tournament, but David reached the par five 15th with a brilliant one-iron shot and holed a 20 footer for an eagle. When Tom bogeyed the 17th, they were tied, but David won it all with a 30 footer for a birdie at the home hole.

"Tom played a near perfect round," Graham said, "but he just missed three putts coming in and I happened to make a couple."

That was the highlight of another successful season, as he had five top 10 finishes and won $137,819. Another one of his better finishes was a fifth alone in the Masters Tournament.

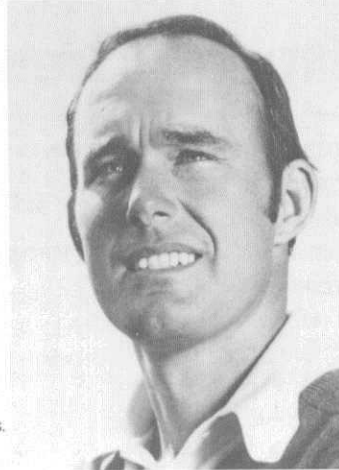

Winning the PGA Championship, he says, changed him as a player and a person. "I felt I was rather tense prior to that. I found the game difficult, but after the PGA, I realized I may have been selling myself short. I've gained more composure, more self-control and I am more relaxed."

David has won numerous titles around the world, but one of his more satisfying was the 1977 Australian Open.

He was only 16 when he turned professional, but his tournament career did not start until the late 1960s in Australia and on the Far East circuit. He came to the United States in 1970, and in something of a surprise, did not get his player's card in the Qualifying School that fall. The very next week, he joined with Bruce Devlin and they won the World Cup for Australia.

The next year, David did succeed in the School, and he has been succeeding ever since.

Lou Graham would be pleased if everyone would forget his playing record for 1980; or, at least, most of his record.

Coming off a brilliant year in 1979 when he won three times, Lou suffered through a series of ailments in 1980, such as a groin muscle pull and back aches, plus an illness to one of his daughters, and had his poorest year in more than a decade.

At one point in mid-summer, he was off for five weeks with the groin problem, and came back for the IVB-Philadelphia Classic, mainly because he was the defending champion. He proceeded to tie for third after an opening 65.

Still ailing, he missed the cut in his next five starts and finished the year well down the list at the Pensacola Open.

The year before Lou gave several classic performances. The first part of the year was not vintage Graham, at all, but a final-round 64 at Whitemarsh Valley in the IVB-Philadelphia Classic let him tie Bobby Wadkins, and then he won the playoff.

Five weeks later, he edged Ben Crenshaw by one in the Pleasant Valley Classic. Late in the fall, at the San Antonio-Texas Open, he won again by one shot, this time over three others.

Even Lou could not explain why he won only three times in 15 years, and then suddenly won three times in a matter of eight weeks.

His biggest victory will remain the 1975 United States Open at Medinah in Chicago. He was tied with John Mahaffey at the end of regulation play, and the next day won the playoff, 71 to 73. That triumph gave him a 10-year exemption from qualifying for all PGA TOUR co-sponsored events, and since he dropped from the rolls of the top 60 in 1980 for the first time since 1969, he will use the Open exemption for 1981.

The only reason he was out of the top 60 in 1969 was because he missed a large portion of the year due to surgery to repair tendonitis in his left hand.

Lou turned professional after his discharge from the Army in 1962 and worked at two golf clubs near Baltimore before starting on Tour in 1964. One of the more consistent players in the game for many years, he was named to three United States Ryder Cup teams.

Early last year, Hubert Green decided that if his golf career was to take another step forward, he would have to make a few swing changes. He did, and the result was a step in the opposite direction.

"When you make changes, sometimes they work and sometimes they don't," he said. "In my case, it wasn't right for me, but it was something I had to try. Now, you will see me with my old swing."

He had won 15 tournaments and more than $1 million in seven years with the old one, but last year he went without a victory and collected only $83,307, his lowest total since 1972.

With the old swing, Hubert was devastating and certainly one of the outstanding players in the world. He had a stretch in the 1976 when he won three straight tournaments — the Doral-Eastern Open, the Greater Jacksonville Open and the Heritage Classic.

The next year, he won the United States Open in a gutty performance at Southern Hills in Tulsa. While his swing may have appeared a little unorthodox, it was highly effective.

Hubert started to swing a club at age five, but as he was going through the teen years, he played all sports. "My father was a believer in sports," he says. "He wanted me to play them all, but as I became older, I eliminated one after the other as I realized I wasn't good enough or big enough to play them."

As a result, he began to concentrate more on golf and during his high school days spent considerable time during the summer months playing in the many special invitationals held throughout his native Alabama. The next step was Florida State University.

He turned professional in 1970 and worked for a summer as an assistant pro at Merion Golf Club in Ardmore, Pa. He qualified for his Tour card in the fall of that year.

Success came quickly. In the Houston Champions Invitational, he tied Don January and then birdied the first extra hole for the victory. He was named the "rookie-of-the-year."

There are numerous success stories on the PGA TOUR, and Dan Halldorson's is one of the classics. He went from near obscurity to a tournament winner and the collector of $111,553 in 1980.

Although he appears to be rather low key, it was his realization that he should curb his anxiety to birdie every hole, and settle for pars — but take the birdies when the opportunity presents itself — that turned it all around.

He was having a fine year, but ended it in perfect fashion, winning the Pensacola Open by two strokes over Mike Sullivan and Gary Hallberg. He became the first Canadian to win on the Tour since George Knudson captured the 1972 Kaiser International Open.

Dan first qualified for the PGA TOUR in the Fall of 1974, but he only won $619 in 1975 and lost his card. He spent the next three years playing all across Canada. "I knew my game wasn't good enough for the Tour," he said.

He won a few times and piled up a number of second-place finishes, but decided in 1978 that he wasn't going anywhere in the game while playing in his homeland. He wanted another shot at the U.S. Tour.

He made it through the Qualifying School, and early in 1979, he tasted success. After two rounds of the Hawaiian Open, he was tied for the lead with Fuzzy Zoeller and George Burns, but finally tied for seventh.

Even though he finished 116th on the 1979 money list, he believed the top 60 in 1980 was a realistic goal. After he finished second to Jim Colbert in the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open, winning $32,400, he knew it was.

He already was assured of exempt status for 1981 with a position among the top 60 money winners when he headed for Pensacola. After two rounds of 68-67 at Perdido Bay, he was tied with Gary Hallberg and Tom Kite at nine-under 135. A 70 the third day left him three in back of Bob Mann, but his final-round 70 was all he needed to regain the lead.

The Halldorson family lived across the street from a golf course in Winnipeg, so he started in the game at an early age. He even built his practice range in his back yard.

In his home Province, he has won the Manitoba Juniors, the Manitoba PGA and twice the Manitoba Open.

Last fall, he was selected to represent Canada for the third straight year in the World Cup competition.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Winner, 1969 Alabama State Juniors; 1972 Alabama State Amateur; 1975 and 1976 Southeastern Conference; 1975 and 1976 American Amateur Classic; 1977 Columbian Open (South America). Named All-America 1975 and 1976.

It was a most satisfying season, to say the least, for Phil Hancock. After struggling through 1979 with back problems, he blossomed as one of the game's outstanding young players in 1980.

His biggest week came on one of his favorite courses, the Pinehurst No. 2, in the Hall of Fame Classic. He won by a stroke over a fast-closing Scott Simpson and collected $45,000 for his first Tour victory.

"It has taken a lot of hard work," he said, "and I've pointed for this victory for sometime. I wanted to come back and play well this year after the trouble I had with my back."

"I've always felt I could win, but you can play well out here for a long time and either not win at all, or not win as much as you'd like."

Phil always has enjoyed success at golf. Although he was an All-Conference quarterback at Greenville (Ala.) High School and also excelled in basketball, golf was his sport. "I knew that would be the one I'd play in college and that one day I would turn professional," he said.

He started as a nine-year old on the encouragement of his father and an older brother. He won the Alabama State Junior title in 1969 and the Alabama State Amateur in 1972. He went on to the University of Florida and twice won the Southeastern Conference crown. While there, he was a teammate of Andy Bean, Gary Koch and Mike Sullivan.

It came as a shock to him when he enrolled in the Fall 1976 PGA TOUR Qualifying School and didn't make it.

When it was time for the School in the Spring of 1977, he was ready. He won medalist honors, and in his first start as a member of the Tour, he tied for ninth in the Western Open.

In the 1978 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open, Phil played some of the finest golf of his career for the first two rounds. He shot 64-64—128, and led by two, but he couldn't keep the pace. He learned another valuable lesson in patience.

"The first two days," he recalled, "I didn't come close to making a bogey, but I put too much pressure on myself trying to continue at that pace."

Although he considers himself a good tee-to-green player and a better than average putter, his short game was one that needed work, and he has improved on that too. When he is playing well, he prefers to move the ball from right-to-left.

Mark Hayes is one of the quieter gentlemen on the PGA TOUR, but when he is playing well, his clubs create more than enough excitement to satisfy his followers.

Although he had an off year in 1980, Mark has had a splendid career since coming out of the Qualifying School in 1973. His big moment, of course, was in the 1977 Tournament Players Championship at Sawgrass. His one-over par total of 289 was good enough to win by two strokes over Mike McCullough.

With that victory came a 10-year exemption from qualifying for PGA TOUR co-sponsored events, and Mark will fall into that category this year since his $66,535 left him in 61st place on the 1980 money list. His best finish a year ago was a fifth alone in the Bob Hope Desert Classic, but his best effort might have been the tie for sixth in the United States Open.

Mark started to play the game at age six under the eye of his father, a high school physical education teacher and golf coach. At age 13, the family moved back to Stillwater, where Mark was born, and there he came under the tutelage of Labron Harris, Sr., the Oklahoma State University coach and close friend of Mark's Dad.

"One of the reasons I was so dedicated to the game," Mark says, "was that I was small for my age and I couldn't do anything else well. I practiced every day. I never thought about doing anything else for a living but playing golf."

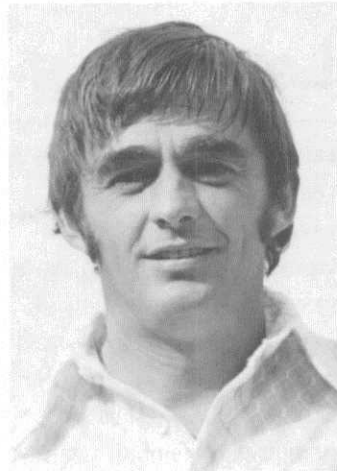

One highlight of his blossoming career came in the annual Texas vs. Oklahoma Junior matches, and he defeated Tom Kite in the final.

During his years at Stillwater High and Oklahoma State, he was a teammate of Doug Tewell, and it was Mark who eventually convinced Doug that he should play the Tour for a living, and not work in a pro shop.

After leaving college, he went into the Army for two years and spent most of his time at Fort Jackson, S. C., working in the golf shop. There at the same time was Joe Inman.

He arrived on the Tour in the Fall of 1973 and broke through with two victories in 1976. He led the Byron Nelson Classic from wire-to-wire and closed the year with a victory in the Pensacola Open.

Dave Hill returned to the PGA TOUR in earnest in 1980 and the result was his best year since 1976 when he made the Greater Milwaukee Open his 13th Tour triumph.

He came close to going all the way again this year in the season opener. At the Bob Hope Desert Classic, he opened with a so-so 74, and then played superb golf the rest of the way, with rounds of 70, 69, 67 and 68 to finish three strokes in back of winner Craig Stadler. It gave Dave a tie for sixth.

That was a trend he set in several tournaments, with three good rounds and one that would prevent him from picking up a sizeable check.

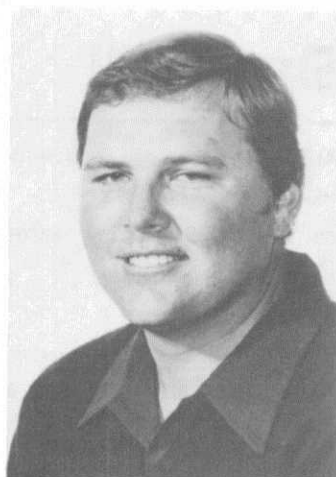

Dave started on Tour in 1959 and once he started winning, he has been one of the game's more colorful people. During his prime years of the 1960s and early 1970s, he was regarded as one of the premier strikers of the ball in the game.

He won for the first time in 1961 capturing the Home of the Sun Open in Tucson and the Denver Open. His favorite stop has to be Memphis. He has won there four times.

The three-time Ryder Cupper had his biggest year in 1969 when he finished second to Frank Beard on the money list with $156,423. He also won the Vardon Trophy that year for the lowest stroke average, 70.34. His second best year was 1974, interestingly enough, after he had an operation on the troublesome knee late in 1973 for the removal of cartilage.

Once he gained stature as a member of the top 60 in 1960, he held that honor for 17 straight years until he decided to cut back on his schedule in 1977. He also was having some back problems.

Maybe Lon Hinkle did go through the year without a victory, but his presence was felt by his fellow competitors on numerous occasions. Four times, Lon finished third, and it wouldn't have taken that much more for him to go the distance.

Twice he was third to Jack Nicklaus, in the United States Open and the PGA Championship. Even though Jack won handily, Lon applied the heat until the final stages of both events. He also was third in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open and in the Sea Pines Heritage Classic.

He also had a blazing finish to the year, with a tie for sixth in the World Series of Golf, tie for fourth in the San Antonio-Texas Open and a fifth alone in the Anheuser-Busch Classic. In that stretch, he also sandwiched in a second place to Tom Kite in the European Open.

When you look at his PGA TOUR record, you could believe it was compiled by two different men. During his first five years, starting in 1972, he won a total of $40,876. The last four years, he has won more than $575,000 and has become one of the game's super stars.

"Early in my career," he says, "my goals were to low. My main goal was to survive. When things would go bad over here, I'd bail out and go overseas to find an easier game."

On one of those trips, he met Edith, a Swiss beauty, and she gave him a new purpose to life. Since then, his career has shot straight for the stars.

While his first victory was in the 1978 New Orleans Open, he had his biggest year in 1979, winning the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am in a playoff over Mark Hayes and Andy Bean. He also won the World Series of Golf, outlasting Larry Nelson to the wire.

Lon's father is an associate professor in Literature at San Diego State University, and Lon started in the game of golf at age 13, shortly after the family moved from Granville, Ohio, to San Diego. He'd play golf every day.

There are seven Hinkle children and in the early days, it wasn't unusual for all of them to be competing in junior golf tournaments around southern California.

BEST 1980 FINISHES: 1—Quad Cities Open. T19—Western Open.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—20; in money—6; top ten finishes—1; stroke avg.—72.62.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: 1977 & 1978 ACC champion; runner-up 1978 U.S. Amateur, 1979 British Amateur; 1977 Northeast Amateur champion; 1978 World Cup team; 1979 Walker Cup team; 1976 & 1979 North Carolina Amateur champion; All-American 1977, 1978; member of 1975 NCAA championship team.

It was a most unusual rookie year, to say the least, for Scott Hoch but he accomplished what all first-year players dream about. He won a tournament, the Quad Cities Open, and he did so in a most impressive fashion.

Only three players were able to lead tournaments from wire-to-wire, and Scott was one of them. His course record 63 the first day at the Oakwood Country Club set the standard for the week.

Scott came on Tour with excellent credentials. He was an outstanding player at Wake Forest University, twice winning the Atlantic Coast Conference title. He was the runner-up in the 1978 U.S. Amateur and the 1979 British Amateur. He played on U.S. Walker Cup and World Amateur Cup teams. This young man could play.

He earned his Tour card in the Fall of 1979, but before he had a chance to tee it up in his first start, the 1980 Phoenix Open, he jarred his back and had to withdraw. The pain became so severe he could not even swing a club. He tried a couple of times, but to no avail. It wasn't until the Atlanta Classic in June — the 23d tournament of the year — that he was able to play 72 holes. He had gone 15 weeks without even trying to enter.

"Atlanta was the first pro tournament I played in which my back felt reasonably well," he said. "I understand this is a problem that always will be with me, though. If I put too much pressure on it, it will tighten up, and I will have to rest it for a week or so."

As the prelude to his victory, he tied for 19th in the Western Open and then missed the cut in the Greater Milwaukee Open.

Nevertheless, he went on to a tournament-record total of 14-under par 266, and he beat two of his more publicized Wake Forest teammates in the process. Curtis Strange was second and Gary Hallberg tied for third.

Still not able to swing with his usual effectiveness, Scott only cashed three more checks in 11 starts the rest of the year, the best effort being a tie for 24th in the Southern Open.

He was raised in an athletic family and started to play golf at age eight. His father, Art, preceded him at Wake Forest, earning All-America honors in baseball and then played professionally until injuries shortened a promising career. Scott's brother, Buddy, is a professional bowler.

It may not have been a typical year for Hale Irwin, but he did prove that when he puts his mind to it, he is a player with immense skills.

The winner of two United States Opens and nine other PGA TOUR titles, Irwin went through the year without a victory, but the biggest surprise was that he missed the cut in seven of 25 events. This is the same Hale Irwin who two years ago had a streak of 86 tournaments without missing, and that is the third best on the all-time Tour record sheet.

During the late spring and summer, though, Hale had a stretch of nine tournaments in which he finished among the top 10 seven times. Now, that's classic Irwin.

The last couple of years, Hale has been spending more time with his family. He wants to be with the two children as much as possible through their early growing years, and, as a result, his game has suffered.

He also has said, "and I'm just not working on my game as hard as I did, or as hard as I possibly should."

His best finish of the year was tie for third in the Western Open, but one of his more impressive performances came in the World Series of Golf at Firestone. He finished 66-66 to tie for fourth. In all, he had nine top 10 finishes, three better than the year before.

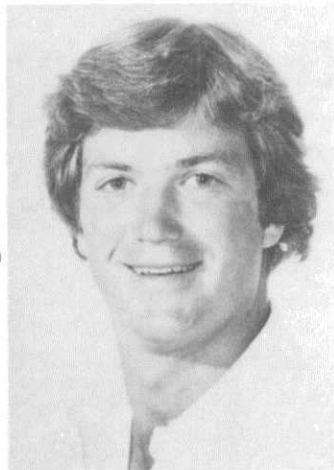

Hale went to the University of Colorado and in 1967 won the NCAA golf title for the Buffaloes. He also was selected twice as an All-Big Eight Conference defensive back. After he was graduated in 1968 with a degree in marketing, he went to the Qualifying School that Spring and made it.

Through his first nine years on Tour, he increased his money winnings to a high of $252,718 in 1976.

Always known for his ability to play the more difficult courses well, his first two victories came in the 1971 and 1973 Sea Pines Heritage Classics on the demanding HarbourTown Links. He then won the Open at Winged Foot, and in 1979 at Inverness, added another Open crown.

Perhaps his greatest performance came in the 1977 Hall of Fame Classic on the Pinehurst No. 2 course. He won by five strokes with an amazing 20-under par 264.

As the PGA TOUR headed for the Buick-Goodwrench Open late last summer, Peter Jacobsen was feeling great about his game. He thought to himself, "I'd like to win here and I think I can. And, if I don't win here, then I'd like to win the B.C. Open next week."

He later explained that he felt those two courses suited his game. In addition, he enjoyed the areas around Grand Blanc, Mich., and Endicott, N.Y. He felt comfortable there and with the people sponsoring the tournaments.

As it turned out, he did win the Buick-Goodwrench, coming from six strokes in back of Rex Caldwell to win by one. It was his first PGA TOUR victory since he started in January of 1977.

The next week in the B.C., he chased Don Pooley to the wire before finishing second. In those two weeks, he collected $64,700, which was far more than he won in any other single season.

His progression up the ladder was steady and he called it a "learning experience. I was very inexperienced about playing golf full time. I learned in a hurry that a lot more goes into the game than most people realize."

Even though he knew he was improving, he said it was a "little frustrating" at times, not to have won, "because I knew I was as good as some of those who were winning, I tried to be patient."

He finished the year with $138,562, and certainly is one of the blossoming young stars of the Tour.

Peter started in the game at age 12. His father taught him the fundamentals, and his older brother, David, also helped considerably. "They are about the only teachers I've ever had," he says.

He went to the University of Oregon and won the PAC-8 Conference championship in 1974. He was named to the collegiate All-America team three years. In 1976, he won the Oregon Open and the Northern California Open.

"I didn't know how good I was, really," he says, "because I had not played that much amateur golf nationally."

Nevertheless, he qualified for the Tour the first time he tried, in the Fall of 1976. He has been on the rise ever since.

Along with his playing skills, Peter also is in demand for clinics and exhibitions, and especially, to do his skits imitating other players. "I used to do some of that stuff in high school," he said. "I enjoy doing it, and I know it has helped me to relax in front of people. From that standpoint, I know it has helped me on the course, playing in front of people."

tic City Seniors, Australian Seniors.

Don January has been one of the toughest and more consistent players on the PGA TOUR for three decades, and now he is taking dead aim at the cash barrels of the blossoming Senior PGA TOUR.

He won the inaugural event sponsored by the PGA TOUR, the Atlantic City Seniors in June. His five-under par score of 68-71-69—208 was worth $20,000 and he edged Mike Souchak by two. Earlier in the spring, he partnered with Sam Snead in the Legends and collected another $25,000 as they finished second to Art Wall and Tommy Bolt. In October, he won the Australian Seniors, edging Art Wall by two.

In the Fall of 1979, he won the PGA Seniors Championship by eight strokes over George Bayer and collected another $15,000.

While Don has not given up the idea of playing the main Tour, he knows he can slip out with the older set and collect plenty of cash. During 1980, he entered 16 tournaments and survived the cut in half of them, winning $41,079. His best finish was a tie for second with Bob Gilder in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open. He was tied with Tom Watson playing the final hole, but suffered a bogey as he came up short of the green and took three to get down.

Before he joined the Tour in 1956, Don played for the NCAA championship team at North Texas State University. In his first year, he won twice, the Dallas Open and the Apple Valley Clambake. His biggest victory was in the 1967 PGA Championship, as he edged Don Massengale in a playoff.

His most satisfying year, though, had to be 1976 when he won $163,622 and was ninth on the list. He won the MONY-Tournament of Champions, finished second twice and was third three times.

In 1972, Don left the Tour to devote his time to golf course construction in the Dallas area. When financing became difficult during the recession, he rejoined the Tour in 1975, soon after his 45th birthday. His remarkable comeback was highlighted in his home state when he defeated Larry Hinson in a playoff to win the San Antonio-Texas Open.

When Grier Jones was in high school, he played all sports, but it wasn't hard to see that he was something special when it came to golf. He won the Kansas State Junior title, and added two Kansas State high school crowns to his collection in 1963 and 1964.

He then was off to Oklahoma State on a golf scholarship, and proceeded to win the Kansas State Amateur and finally the National Collegiate Championship in 1966.

It was with those credentials that he headed for the Tour Qualifying School in the fall of 1968 and was the medalist. After a good first year he was named rookie-of-the-year.

He has been one of the Tour's steadier performers ever since, even though he has had periods of back-and-wrist problems. It has always affected his left side, and then early last year, he missed nearly all of the west coast swing due to a painful left elbow.

Once that was well, and he played two good tournaments in Florida — tie for seventh in the Doral-Eastern Open and tie for eighth in the Tournament Players Championship — he started to cut back on his schedule. "I don't know why, but I seemed to lose interest in playing," he said. "I didn't want to take the time to practice, and if you don't practice, you can't play very long on the Tour."

It meant he dropped out of the top 60 on the money list, so he will retain his exempt status in 1981 by using his career earnings of well over three-quarter million dollars.

His two individual victories came in 1972, both in playoffs. He defeated Bob Murphy in the Hawaiian Open and Dave Marad in the Robinson Fall Classic.

He won $140,177 that year for his best financially. His poorest was 1975 with 15,719, due mainly to sitting out for 10 weeks with pneumonia. In 1979, he again topped the $100,000 mark and his stroke average of 70.75 for 73 rounds was second best on Tour to Tom Watson.

One of his biggest disappointments came in the 1978 Jackie Gleason Inverrary Classic. He appeared on his way to victory, only to have Jack Nicklaus birdie each of the last five holes to take it away from him.

All through his golfing career, Tom Kite has been one of the game's steadiest performers. He may not dazzle his followers with tons of birdies, but at week's end, he'll usually be there, pressing the leaders.

This past year, he had 10 top 10 finishes in 26 starts and a total of 17 in the top 20. While victory eluded his grasp, his play indicates that it would not have taken many more putts to drop for him to be among the big winners of the year. He did go to England late in the summer and win the European Open.

A third-round 65 paved the way to a second-place finish in the IVB-Philadelphia Classic, but one of his better chances came in the Pensacola Open. He was only two back starting the last round, but a closing 74 dropped him into a tie for fourth, only three off the lead.

Through his first eight years, Tom increased his money each year to a high of $166,878, but last year he dipped over so slightly to $152,490. His victories came in the 1976 IVB-Philadelphia Classic when he defeated Terry Diehl on the fifth extra hole of their playoff; and in the 1978 B. C. Open.

In 1979, Tom earned a place on the United States Ryder Cup team, and also was elected a Player Director on the PGA TOUR'S Policy Board. He remains on the latter through this year.

Kite's life in golf began at age 6, when his father put a club in his hand for the first time and urged him to take a swipe. At 11 he won his first tournament, an age-group event at the Country Club of Austin, Tex. He began to take the game seriously three years later.

Before his 21st birthday in 1970, Tom was medalist in the Western Amateur, runnerup to Lanny Wadkins in the U.S. Amateur, second in the Southern Amateur and was named to the four-man U.S. team in the World Amateur Team Championship.

The following year he was chosen on the U.S. Walker Cup team and, in 1972, he shared the NCAA title with his U. of Texas schoolmate, Ben Crenshaw, before turning pro and joining the Tour. In 1973, Tom won the Hope of Tomorrow Second Tour event and was named rookie of the year after missing the cut in only three of 35 events.

Bill Kratzert really needed a year such as 1980. He needed it to prove to himself that he could play the game with the best. A victory in the Greater Milwaukee Open was all the icing he needed to top off an outstanding year.

"Until Milwaukee," he explained, "it had been three years since I won the Greater Hartford Open (1977). I've played well since then, but I couldn't eliminate the bad holes. I was beginning to think the Hartford victory was a fluke, but the way I've been playing lately has assured me I can play."

Milwaukee always has held a soft spot for Kratzert. It was there in 1976 that he made his first start as a member of the Tour after the Qualifying School. His victory at the Tuckaway Country Club was by four strokes over Howard Twitty.

A year earlier, Bill was wondering about his future in the game. He developed tendinitis in both wrists early in 1979 and it hampered his play for most of the year. "The pain started to leave in late September," he recalled, "and I don't have any idea why. It hasn't bothered me since."

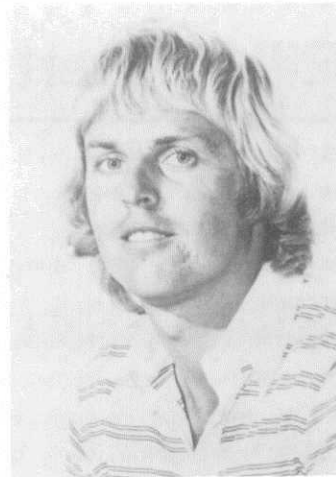

Along with the victory, Bill also tied for second twice, in the Greater Greensboro Open and the Buick-Goodwrench Open. He also was third twice, in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am and the Byron Nelson Classic.

Kratzert was practically born into the game, the son of the head pro at Fort Wayne, Ind., CC for the last 20 years. "I didn't start to play until I was about 13," Bill says. "My dad never pushed me into it. It was just always there. It wasn't until I was 14 or 15 years old that I decided that golf was my game."

He won the Indiana State Amateur at age 16 and the Indiana Open a year later. Allen Miller, who befriended Bill when he became ill during the Sunnehanna Amateur, influenced him to go to the University of Georgia, where he was chosen All-Southeastern Conference all four years and All-American his last two.

After he failed in his first try in the Tour Qualifying School, Kratzert quit the game in frustration, went home to Fort Wayne and worked six months as a fork-lift operator. But in the Spring of 1975 he accepted an assistant pro's job at a club and returned to the game to stay.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Small College All-American 1971 and 1972.

Wayne Levi knows he is an excellent player; and so do his peers. It will not be long until the entire golfing community knows how well this fellow can play.

In the fall of 1978, he teamed with Bob Mann and they won the Walt Disney World National Team title. That gave him exempt status for 1979, and he made good use of it. He won the Houston Open and $141,612. This past year, he won again, in the Pleasant Valley Jimmy Fund Classic, besting Gil Morgan in a playoff. He earned $120,145 for the year.

"After I won at Houston," he admitted, "I wasn't certain if I could win again. I wanted to, of course, but in the back of my mind, I wondered if it was a one-shot goal.

Early in the year, he made a few changes in his swing. "I wanted it to be picture book," he explained, "but then I lost my knack for scoring. I was playing well, but not putting."

Midway through the Jimmy Fund Classic at Sutton, Mass., a few tips from Jim Simons turned on the light, and paved the way to the victory. His first two rounds were 71-71. His last two were 65-66.

Wayne started to play golf at age 13, mainly because his buddies were playing the game. He admits it wasn't long until he was hooked, completely.

During his days at Herkimer High School in upper New York State, he never lost a match and in two years at nearby Oswego State College, he only lost once.

In the Summer of 1972, he headed for Florida so he could devote 12 months of the year to his game. After two years on the mini-tours, he tried for his PGA TOUR card and didn't make it in his first two attempts. Meanwhile, he played wherever he could find a game throughout Florida and in the summer months, on the New England circuit.

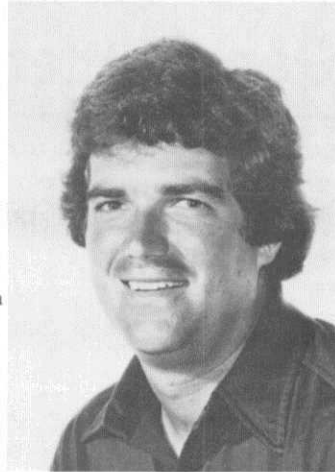

"I won enough money playing around New England one summer to go back down South for the winter. Sometimes, I would carry my own bag. I'd eat hamburgers and drive my own car," he recalls.

Finally, in June of 1977, he made it through the Qualifying School.

His first few months on Tour were a little discouraging. he played well at times, but couldn't sustain any sort of momentum. "I didn't finish well at the end of 1977 and it carried over into the start of 1978," he said. "It started to affect my attitude. I was getting down on myself."

By mid-1978, he was starting to play well again, and he gives considerable credit to Judy, the pretty young gal who became his wife in the fall. "She kept after me," he says, grinning, "and that made all the difference."

Fortunately for the PGA TOUR, Bruce Lietzke has not put his clubs in the closet lately. He is one of the genuine stars of the game, a fellow with the talent to win anytime he tees it up. His five victories in the last four years is testament to that.

There was a time, though, when the handsome Lietzke was tired of the competition and needed some time to think about his future. It was late in the spring of 1973, shortly after he left the University of Houston.

"I had played so much through high school and college that I was tired of it," he said. At that time, he said he was through with the game. "Oh, I suppose, in the back of my mind, I knew I would get back to it."

Six months later, he did, and he turned professional in 1974. He missed by one stroke in his first attempt at qualifying for the PGA TOUR, but he made it in the Spring of 1975.

He played well on Tour almost from the start, although his first victory did not come until the 1977 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open when he defeated Gene Littler on the fourth extra hole. A couple of weeks later he won again in the Hawaiian Open.

Last spring, he gained a most satisfying victory when he won the Colonial National Invitation in Fort Worth. He shot a course record-tying 63 the first day and never was headed. He even had his first ace on Tour in the opening round. His victory was by one stroke over Ben Crenshaw.

A final-round 65 gave him a tie for second in the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic, and he had four other top 10 finishes. Interestingly enough, his stroke average of 71.28 was exactly the same as in 1979. In the Tour's Official Statistics, he was third among the Eagle leaders with 12.

The last few years, Bruce has been bothered on occasions with a stomach-muscle injury, and he never knows when a sudden stretch may cause it to pull again. Generally, in 1980, he had no serious problem with it.

Bruce started to play golf at age five when brother Duane, then an assistant professional in Wichita, Kans., gave him a cut-down set of clubs. While at Beaumont Forest Park High School in Texas, he won the Texas State Scholastic title as a sophomore and helped his team to one championship and three seconds in his four years. While at the University of Houston — where he roomed with Bill Rogers — he won the 1971 Texas State Amateur.

Shortly after Jack Renner came out on the PGA TOUR, he was asked if he had any idols, was there anyone he would like to emulate.

Without hesitation, he said, "Gene Littler. I grew up in the San Diego area and Gene has lived there all of his life. I can assure you, there isn't one single person, anywhere, who can or would say one bad thing about Gene Littler. He is a great competitor and certainly one of the all-time greats in the game."

No one could have said it better. Gene has had his share of glory since starting on Tour in 1954, and he has known adversity, too. In the spring of 1972, for example, he underwent surgery for cancer of the lymph glands. Most thought he never would reappear on Tour. Yet, he did, by the end of 1972. In July of '73, about 16 months after surgery, he won the St. Louis Children's Hospital Classic.

In 1975, he won three times, and in 1977 he won again, giving him a grand total of 29 Tour triumphs through 1980. While he did not win on Tour last year, he did capture the inaugural World Senior Invitational in Charlotte, N. C., nipping the host Arnold Palmer by two strokes. The golf world will be seeing more of Gene in Senior events, since he turned 50 last July 21.

Gene won the 1953 United States Amateur and his first victory came in his hometown, the 1954 San Diego Open. He was an amateur at the time. The next week he turned professional and headed for the Thunderbird Classic in Palm Springs. As a result of the victory and then his triumph in the 1961 United States Open, he never has been subjected to qualifying for a Tour event.

In the San Diego event, he won by four over Dutch Harrison, and he once kidded, "I still have the trophy, but I'll bet Dutch doesn't have the money."

As soon as Mark Lye started to play the game, he knew he would be a golfer for the rest of his days. He received his first set of clubs as a nine-year-old, and he played every day, all day.

"I was small for my age," Mark recalls, "but I could beat the bigger guys in golf. I didn't start to grow until I was in college, so playing golf was the only way I could be competitive."

He played all over California, and in 1970, he was the No. 1 junior on the state's point system. As a 12-and-13-year old, he was winning tournaments.

He headed for San Jose State after being graduated from high school, and it was difficult at first, because he still had not started to sprout. As a freshman, he was five-feet-nine, 125 pounds. By the end of the next year, he was close to his present size of six-feet-two, 175 pounds.

As a second-year player, he was ninth in the NCAA championship, and won three times as a junior.

After being graduated from San Jose State, he set his sights on the Tour, but first headed for Europe for more experience. He tried the Qualifying School in the fall of 1975 and missed and again in the spring of 1976 and missed. He was off to Europe, and then Australia after that, and blossomed as a winner. In fact, he won the 1976 Australian Order of Merit. In the fall of 1976, he was back in the Qualifying School, and he made it.

After a decent first year, he had swing problems in 1978, but says it was Bobby Walzel and Bunky Henry who set him straight. He went on to win $51,184 in 1979 and then became a front-liner in 1980 with $109,454.

"My biggest problem used to be my driving and my putting," he says, "but now I might go for days without missing a fairway."

By mid-summer, Mark knew he would be among the top 60 money winners for the first time, but it was after the Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Classic in mid-August that $100,000 became a realistic goal. He finished tied for seventh there, and came back with a tie for second in the Buick-Goodwrench Open the next week for a total of $33,640.

At the Buick, he was seven-strokes out of the lead after three days, but a final-round 67 let him climb to within one of winner Peter Jacobsen. Earlier in the year, he also tied for second in the Tallahassee Open and tied for third in the Greater Milwaukee Open.

When John Mahaffey is healthy, he certainly is one of the finest players in the game today. As you look over his record, you can spot the years when he has had physical problems, such as in 1976, 1977 and in 1979.

Last year was another good one, though, as he won the Kemper Open at tough Congressional Country Club, and collected a personal high of $165,827. He led Lee Trevino by one at the Kemper after three rounds, and a closing two-under 68 gave him the edge over Craig Stadler. When the heat was on, he played the final nine holes in three-under par, and later exclaimed, "I played better than I ever have before, even better than in the PGA," which he won at Oakmont in 1978.

John joined the PGA TOUR in the fall of 1971 after a fine amateur career. He won the 1970 NCAA championship for the University of Houston.

His first victory was in the 1973 Sahara Invitational in Las Vegas. Physical problems hit him for the first time at the 1976 PGA Championship at Congressional. He suffered a hyperextended tendon in his left elbow. It gradually became worse toward the end of the year, and it practically was impossible for him to compete early in 1977. He reached the point where he wondered if he would ever play the Tour again.

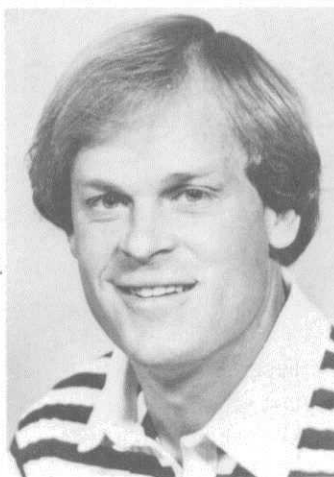

In the Spring, he received the go-ahead to play, but before he had a chance, he fell off a ladder in his garage and broke a finger. He wasn't able to rejoin the Tour until July, and made checks in only five of 15 starts the rest of the year.

He was completely healthy again by mid-1978, and enjoyed a six-month stretch when he played as well as everyone knew he could. He won the PGA in a playoff over Tom Watson and Jerry Pate, and the next week he won the American Optical Classic in Sutton, Mass.

He was named to the World Cup team that played in Hawaii, and he won medalist honors. When the new year dawned, he won the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

Within a month, hard luck struck him again. Trying to blast out of a bunker at Pebble Beach in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, his clubhead tore into the heavy sod on the lip and came to a sudden halt. The result was that all of the tendons on the back of the hand and wrist gave away. He tried to play in Hawaii the next week but had to withdraw. It was three months before he could return. As the year progressed, his sharpness gradually returned, leading to his excellent play in 1980.

Winning is something Johnny Miller knew all about, and it seemed so easy for him. During his banner years on the PGA TOUR in the mid-1970s, you wondered how he ever lost.

So, when he went through four years on the Tour without a victory, you wondered what had happened. Even Johnny had a difficult time explaining the drought, except to say he had different priorities, and enjoyed spending more time with his growing family.

It was like old times late in the summer of 1979, when he started to put the good rounds together again. A second-round 63 on the No. 2 course at Pinehurst was the springboard to letting him tie Tom Watson in the Colgate-Hall of Fame Classic. Watson won the playoff, but you had the feeling Johnny was well on the way back. The old fires were starting to burn.

He found the old magic early in 1980. In the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic, the juices were flowing and he took the third-round lead with a six-under 66, and finally won by two strokes over Bruce Lietzke and Charles Coody.

That was his only victory, but the year was his best since 1976. He ended it with a tie for second in the Southern Open. It was at the Southern in 1971, that Johnny won for the first time.

Miller's arrival as a star always has been tied to his final-round 63 and victory in the 1973 U.S. Open at Oakmont, but it was in 1974 that he won eight times and set what was then a record of $353,021. He won the first three events of that year.

The next year, Johnny's clubs were blazing again. He won the Phoenix Open to start the year with a 24-under par score, and the next week won the Tucson Open with a 25-under score. In each tournament, he had a round of 61.

No one has touched back-to-back efforts like that since.

In 1966, Johnny first gained national notoriety when he signed up to caddy in the U.S. Open at the Olympic Club in his native San Francisco. However, he eventually qualified to play in the tournament, and went on to an eighth-place finish.

He started in the game at age five, and one of his first titles was the U.S. Juniors in 1964. He went to Brigham Young University and was graduated in 1969. Later that year, he qualified for the Tour.

"Golf is such an unpredictable sport — I've wondered many times whether or not I should be doing this for a living."

So said the "old" Jeff Mitchell, the one who had won just $81,246 in three years on the PGA TOUR, never finishing higher than fourth in any tournament.

All that changed, however, when the 25-year-old Texas Tech product vaulted past the field at the 1980 Phoenix Open, winning easily by four shots and pocketing $54,000 in one fell swoop.

"Winning has given me a world of confidence," the likeable, easy-going Texan says. "From now on, I'll play more aggressively . . . something you have to do to win. I'll probably be making more birdies and bogeys because I'll be shooting at the flag."

Despite his relative obscurity prior to his win at Phoenix, Mitchell had not gone unnoticed by his fellow pros. "Jeff is destined to be a top player," said Tour veteran Chi Chi Rodriguez, expressing a sentiment shared by many.

As the year progressed, Jeff continued to prove that he was on Tour to stay. He used a final-round 65 in the Colonial National Invitation to finish third and had top ten finishes in the Greater Greensboro Open and the Kemper Open.

His winnings for the year totaled $111,217, a rather tidy sum for a fellow who two years earlier had suffered through physical problems and won only $12,184.

Mitchell, who started playing golf at 14, won the 1978 Texas State Open in a playoff against Ben Crenshaw. His amateur career was highlighted by two consecutive victories (1975-76) in the West Texas Championships, and by a runner-up finish in the 1976 Southwest Conference tournament — to Tour regular Keith Fergus.

Mitchell's win at Phoenix came relatively easily as he was never seriously threatened down the stretch on Sunday, carrying a four-shot lead into the par-3 15th at Phoenix Country Club.

"That was the only time I really got worried," he admitted. "The pin was set directly over the water, and I felt the only way I could lose the tournament would be to knock it in the drink, so I said to myself, 'it won't be easy to two-putt from the back of the green, but you can bet I'm gonna be there!' . . . and I was."

Mitchell credits his middle and short iron play as the best part of his game. "I think I've become a pretty decent striker of the ball, but I've got some work to do on my putting," he says.

As thrilled as he was with his Phoenix victory, his happiest day of the year came April 23d. That was when his wife, Chris, presented him with their first son, Jeffrey McDonald.

When Orville Moody arrived at the Houston Champions Golf Club for the 1969 United States Open, there was only one person, other than Orville himself, who thought he had a chance.

His pal, Lee Trevino, told him, "If I don't win it this week, I think you will, Sarge."

Those words meant a lot to Orville, and he did go on to win the Open in one of the Championship's biggest surprises. He was only two years out of the Army and only a year away from giving up the Tour completely.

There have not been many other highlights to Orville's PGA TOUR career, but later in that year, he joined with Trevino and they won the World Cup title for the United States. He also won such things as the 1958 All-Army Championship and the 1962 All-Service Championship, definitely highlights in his mind.

Orville's father was a golf course superintendent in Oklahoma and he says, "I've been playing the game for as long as I can remember." He won the Oklahoma State high school crown.

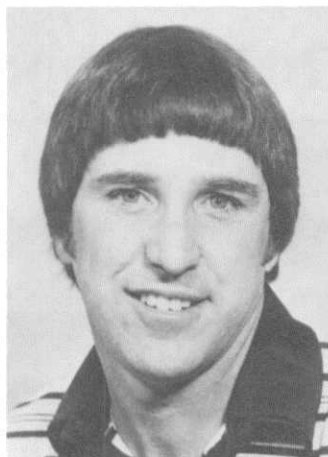

He was offered an athletic scholarship to the University of Oklahoma, but left college shortly after enrolling and enlisted in the Army. After a stint as a rifle instructor, his golfing talents were recognized, and was placed in charge of maintenance, instruction and supervision of Army courses. He served in Japan, Korea, Germany and the United States. He even won three Korean Opens.

In 1967, while stationed at Fort Hood in Killeen, TX., he decided to give up his 14-year career in the Army — he was a Staff Sergeant — and try the Tour. He gave himself two years to make good, or he would return to the Army.

He made it through the 1967 Qualifying School, but it was not an easy year in 1968, winning $12,950. A few times, he was on the verge of quitting, but decided to stick by his original plan to give the Tour at least two years.

Orville, who is part Cherokee Indian, earned checks in his first five 1980 tournaments, but he could go the distance in only four more the rest of the year. His winnings were $13,619.

Gil Morgan is considered by many to have one of the finest swings in golf; one without a noticeable flaw. As a result, he has enjoyed a successful stay on the PGA TOUR, winning four times, including the 1978 World Series of Golf in a playoff over Hubert Green.

While he was shut out of the winner's circle in 1980, the year was a productive one. He lowered his stroke average by nearly a full stroke from the year before and increased his money winnings to his second best year since starting in the fall of 1973.

His biggest disappointment came in the Pleasant Valley-Jimmy Fund Classic. He led after the third round, but Wayne Levi shot a final-day 66 to tie him, and then won it all on the fourth extra hole. He said a "couple of mental mistakes" cost him the victory.

He also had two third place finishes, in the Kemper Open and in the PGA Championship. He finished the year with seven top 10's, while he only had two in 1979, so his overall consistency improved.

Gil started to play the game at age 15. When he was a junior at East Central State in Oklahoma, he decided to pursue it as a career, along with his goal of someday obtaining a degree in optometry. He won the Oklahoma collegiate championship in 1967, but waited until he earned his doctorate in optometry before turning professional in 1972.

His best national amateur performances came in the Western Amateur and Porter Cup, finishing second in 1972. He entered the Qualifying School in the Fall of 1972, but did not make it. After a stint on the mini-tours, he returned in 1973 and passed his test.

Although he did not gain a lot of national amateur attention, Danny Edwards said that the players around Oklahoma knew all about him. "Oh, yeah, we knew all about the fellow named Morgan who lived in Wewoka."

He progressed steadily up the ladder on the Tour until he won the 1977 B.C. Open by five strokes over Lee Elder. The next year, he won the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open and then the World Series of Golf. He pocketed $267,459 for the year and was the No. 2 money winner behind Tom Watson.

Although he did not play well early in 1979, he did pull his game together in the Danny Thomas Memphis Classic and won in a playoff over his close friend, Larry Nelson. He had to hole a long putt from the fringe on the second extra hole.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: 1965 U.S. Amateur champion. 1966 NCAA champion. 1975 Ryder Cup Team. Player Director on PGA TOUR Policy Board, 1979-1980. Member 1966 World Amateur Cup Team. 1967 Walker Cup Team. Winner, 1967 Florida Open. 1968 Rookie of the Year.

It was a banner year for Bob Murphy in 1980, as he went over the $100,000 mark in winnings for the fourth time in his 13-year PGA TOUR career, but also for the first time since 1975; and he also became one of the game's $1 million winners.

That's not bad for a fellow who didn't take up the game until he was in college. He went to the University of Florida on a baseball scholarship as a pitcher, but he injured a shoulder in a pick-up football game as a freshman.

He took up golf as a physical education course and it was love at first sight. He said he would even skip class to practice.

Before he was graduated with a degree in physical education, he won the 1965 United States Amateur championship, the 1966 NCAA title for the Gators, two Florida Amateur titles, the 1967 Florida Open, and played on U.S. World Amateur Cup and Walker Cup teams.

He turned professional and went to the PGA TOUR School in 1967, and passed easily. In his rookie year of 1968, he set a goal of winning $40,000. He won $105,595, a record for a first-year player at that time, and two tournaments, the Philadelphia and Thunderbird Classics, back-to-back. Just prior to his first victory, he was second in the Westchester Classic.

He has won twice since then, the 1970 Greater Hartford Open and the 1975 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic.

He had off years in 1976 and 1977, due mainly to a uric acid condition that gave him hand problems, came back slightly in 1978 and then, for the only time in his Tour career, slipped from the list of top 60 money winners in 1979. He was 62nd, only $770 behind the 60th man. He figured he needed one more putt, somewhere, to keep his streak alive.

Last year, Bob tied for third in the B.C. Open for his best finish, but he had eight top 10's, an increase of four from the year before. His stroke average came down close to a full shot a round, and he only missed four cuts in 28 starts, as compared to 14 in 33 starts the year before. So, his improvement was substantial.

In the Official Statistics department, he had 11 eagles to tie for fourth, and saved par out of sand bunkers 54.9 per cent of the time for sixth place.

Larry Nelson is one of the quiet men in the game, but it seems as if every time you look up, there is his name, on a leader board. He lets his clubs do all the talking, and lately, they have been making a lot of noise.

He won for the third time in 1980, and in many ways, it was his most satisfying victory. It came in the Atlanta Classic, and his home is just a few miles away in Acworth. With his family and many friends cheering him on, he won by seven strokes over Andy Bean and Don Pooley. Only Jack Nicklaus in the PGA Championship could match that victory margin.

"I'm not a very emotional player," he said later, "but on the 18th, to look over and see my mother and father and my wife, it was a very emotional thing."

He had nine top 10 finishes in 29 starts, and collected $182,715 for the year finishing in 11th place. Just to give you an idea of the impact he has had on the Tour, in 1979 and 1980, he won a total of $463,737. Few have ever enjoyed that type of success.

It was a storybook year in 1979, with two victories and a brilliant performance against Great Britain-Ireland-Europe in the Ryder Cup Matches at the Greenbrier. Teamed with Lanny Wadkins, they won all four of their matches, and the last day, he defeated Seve Ballesteros of Spain in singles, 3 and 2.

People knew it was only a matter of time before he won, and he reached that goal in the 1979 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic, his sixth year on Tour. In mid-summer, he lost to Gil Morgan in a playoff at the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic, but came back the next week to defeat Ben Crenshaw in the Western Open.

There are not many stories on the PGA TOUR more unusual than Nelson's. Only four years after he started to play golf, and after playing only one 72-hole tournament, he had his Approved Tournament Players card. "I really wasn't ready," he said later, but he got ready in a hurry, as witness his steady climb up the money rankings since then.

Larry lettered in baseball and basketball in high school and attended Southern Tech for a year before he was drafted and spent two years in the military. After his discharge in 1968, he tried school again and also worked as an illustrator at the Lockheed plant near his home.

He went to a driving range one day in 1969, liked hitting balls so much that he went to work in pro Bert Seagraves' shop at the Pine Tree Club in Kennesaw, Ga. He turned pro six months after that. He tried the mini-tours briefly and, in 1973, finished bogey-bogey in the Florida State Open to lose by a shot. That was his lone 72-hole event before earning his Tour card that fall.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—18; in money—10; top ten finishes—3; stroke avg.—72.11.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Winner of tournaments around world, including 1972 Dutch Open, and Benson & Hedges; 1973 Air New Zealand Open; 1974 British Match Play; 1976 and 1979 New South Wales Open; and 1979 Australian Open. Lost 1975 British Open in playoff to Tom Watson. Winner, 1980 Australian Order of Merit.

Jack Newton has always enjoyed success as a professional golfer, winning as many as 20 tournaments in England, Europe, Africa, New Zealand and in his homeland of Australia. One of his most cherished titles came in the 1979 Australian Open.

He added the United States to his list in 1978 when he defeated Mike Sullivan on the first extra hole for the Buick-Goodwrench title.

Yet, there have been disappointments for Jack, too. The U.S. Tour has not been as lucrative as he had hoped it would be, although there were very positive signs in 1980.

The first two weeks in April, he tied for second, in the Greater Greensboro Open and then in the Masters Tournament. Unfortunately for Jack, those were the weeks when Craig Stadler and Seve Ballesteros were carrying the exceptionally hot hands, and they won by wide margins.

He also tied for fourth in the Kemper Open on the tough Congressional course, and those three finishes highlighted a year that netted him $80,431. For the first time in his four years on Tour, he finished among the top 60 money winners.

Jack's father, a Sydney detective, started him in the game at age 13. In those days, though, Jack's first love was rugby. He played it until he was 16, when he suffered an injury to the cartilage in his left knee. It required an operation and that ended his days on the rugby field.

He played well as an amateur in Australia, and turned professional in 1971. He started to play in Europe in 1972, and the following year, he won twice and was the second leading money winner on the Continent.

"I knew that one day I would play in America," he said, "but I decided to stay in Europe until I was financially secure enough to play for two years over here without a sponsor."

His first attempt at qualifying was in the Spring school of 1975 and he didn't make it. A few weeks later, in the British Open at Carnoustie, he had the lead until Tom Watson holed a 25 footer on the 72nd hole to tie him. The next day, Watson won the title, with a 71 to Jack's 72.

He continued to play around the world, and in the fall of 1976 gave the PGA TOUR another try, and he made it.

Bobby Nichols has had one of the leading names in golf for nearly two decades, yet, he came very close to not being able to play at all.

Since he started on the PGA TOUR in 1960, Bobby has won 12 times, including the 1964 PGA Championship at the Columbus (OH) Country Club. It was there that he seemingly made great shots from all corners of the golf course and holed putts from one end of the state to the other. He won by three over Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer.

Several years earlier, Bobby was an outstanding football and basketball player at St. Xavier High School in Louisville, Ky. On September 3, 1952, he was critically injured when a car in which he was a passenger failed to make a curve and crashed.

He suffered a broken pelvis, back injuries, a brain concussion and internal injuries. He was paralyzed from the waist down and was unconscious for 13 days. He was hospitalized for 96 days.

His football and basketball days were over, but he still could play golf, when he finally regained the use of his legs. While going on to win junior golf titles in Kentucky, he met Bear Bryant, then the football coach at the University of Kentucky. Bryant went on to Texas A&M, and proceeded to give Bobby a scholarship to play golf for the Aggies.

Bobby won the 1956 Southwestern Conference title, and after he was graduated, spent two years in the Army. He held the rank of Captain in the reserves.

He came out on Tour in 1960, and two years later was honored by the Golf Writers Association of America with the Ben Hogan Award for his courageous comeback.

He had another terrifying moment at the 1975 Western Open. That was when he felt the effects of a bolt of lightning and was taken to the hospital with Lee Trevino and Jerry Heard. He has not played with the same effectiveness since.

Just when many sports fan were beginning to think Jack William Nicklaus was near the end as a tough tournament competitor, he rose up and gave two of his greatest performances.

He won the United States Open for a fourth time, winning by four strokes in an extremely-emotional week at Baltusrol; and he won the PGA Championship by seven strokes at Oak Hill for a record-tying fifth time.

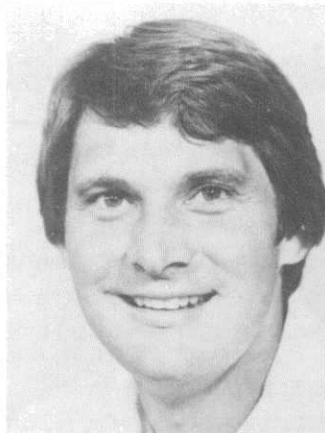

He admitted that his Open triumph probably was the most-satisfying of his career. He had not won on Tour in nearly two years, and many of his performances in leading up to Baltusrol had been anything but vintage Nicklaus. In fact, just the week before, he missed the 36-hole cut in the Atlanta Classic.

Jack only had two other solid tournaments in 1980. He lost in sudden death to Raymond Floyd in the Doral-Eastern Open, and tied for fourth in the British Open.

The year came to a crashing halt for Jack at the World Series of Golf. While on the practice tee prior to the final round, he suffered a severe muscle spasm in his back, and had to withdraw.

In the PGA TOUR'S Official Statistics, he was No. 1 in hitting Greens in Regulation with a .721 average.

Andy North would like to be able to find the secret he uncovered in 1977 and 1978, and then somehow misplaced in much of 1979 and 1980. He was rapidly becoming one of the game's bright young stars in those days, climaxed, of course, by his triumph in the 1978 U.S. Open at Cherry Hills in Denver.

He has not won since, and seldom has challenged. Last year, for example, he only had two top 10 finishes with a tie for fourth in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open his best. He finished 69th on the money list and for the first time since his rookie year of 1973, out of the top 60. He retains his exempt status because of his Open victory.

He did tie for eighth in the Open at Baltusrol, and after his opening round of 68, commented: "It's great to play well for a change. It's been so long I almost have forgotten how it feels."

There were good signs toward the end of the year. His last tournament was the B. C. Open at the end of August, but said, "I know I have played better lately, but I haven't been able to score. I need to take some time off."

Physically, he said he felt fine, except that "I have a history of several little things; nothing that needs surgery or anything like that, but little ailments that can bother you."

Andy's victory in the Open at Cherry Hills showed how much inner-strength this big fellow has. He led by two after 36 holes and by one after 54. He increased his lead to four strokes with five to play, but he saw that evaporate quickly and faced the last hole needing a bogey to win. That's just what he scored, too, after being bunkered in three, blasting to four feet and holing the putt for the victory.

An unusual ailment helped lead North to golf when he was in the seventh grade in Madison, Wis. A bone in his knee had stopped growing and was disintegrating. While on crutches for 18 months he was told to give up his pursuit of basketball and football but that he could play golf — if he rode in a cart.

Since Andy's father was a low-handicap golfer, the game was no stranger to the family and he progressed quickly. He also returned to basketball and was chosen all-state as a high school senior, but by then golf was his dominant sport.

North won the Wisconsin high school championship in 1966 and 1967, the State Amateur in 1969 and placed second in the Wisconsin Open in 1968 and 1969. After entering the University of Florida he was chosen All-American for three years and won the 1971 Western Amateur.

Arnold Palmer has been honored by many people from all walks of life during his distinguished career, but one of his most cherished moments came when it was announced by Commissioner Deane Beman that, starting in 1981, the leading money winner on the PGA TOUR will receive the Arnold Palmer Award.

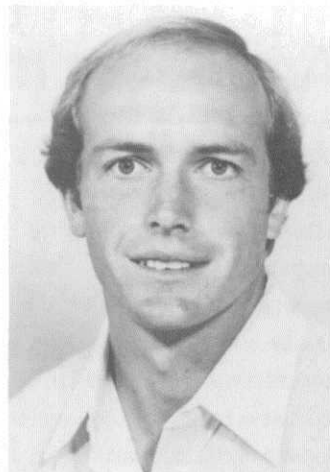

Since Arnold was the leading money winner for so many years, the first man to reach the magic $1 million in winnings and, generally, done so much for the game and the Tour, Commissioner Beman also announced last fall that the 1980 Arnold Palmer Award would go to Arnold himself.

Since starting on Tour in 1955, following his victory in the U. S. Amateur the year before, Palmer has won everything worth mentioning. Even last year, he added the Canadian PGA title (a non-Tour event) to his lengthy list.

He still loves the competition and his presence usually spells success. At the Southern Open last September, he gave his followers a special thrill as he held the first-day lead with a 66. He eventually tied for 13th, his best in his 13 appearances on Tour.

As always, he still thinks of winning. "The mystery still remains," he said once, smiling, "whether I can win or not. I haven't stopped thinking that I CAN win."

While Jerry Pate has enjoyed an extremely-successful career on the PGA TOUR, it hasn't been totally satisfying because victories have not come as frequently as he would like.

He nearly always seems to be in contention, but taking the last step the last two years has been very difficult. In 1980, for example, Jerry had 12 top 10 finishes in 27 starts and his poorest finish in the tournaments that he went 72 holes was a tie for 24th in the Bay Hill Classic and the Kemper Open.

He lost the Sea Pines Heritage Classic in a one-hole playoff to Doug Tewell, and tied for second in the Greater Greensboro Open and Canadian Open. Twice, he finished third.

There were times when he felt his driving was holding him back and his putting was his saving grace. There have been times when it was the other way around.

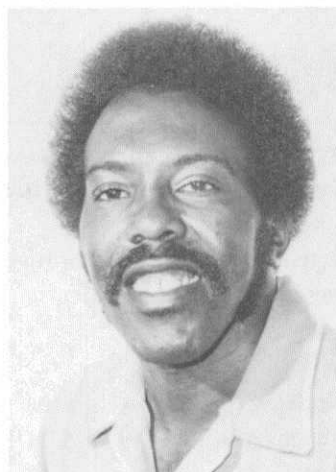

He fared well in the Official Statistics. He was No. 1 in putting with 28.81 a round, partly because he was 107th in hitting greens in regulation. His stroke average of 70.72 was third best on Tour and his 345 birdies tied him for sixth best.

Pate literally burst into world-wide attention as a PGA Tour rookie in 1976. His last swing in the U.S. Open, a five-iron from the rough at Atlanta Athletic Club, left him a two-foot birdie putt for a two-shot victory, and his closing 63 in the Canadian Open was good for a four-stroke victory over Jack Nicklaus. His total of $153,102 in official earnings is the most ever won by a rookie.

Conrad Rehling, who developed Bob Murphy while coaching at the University of Florida in the early 1960s, found another champion-to-be about a decade later while coaching at a small college near Pensacola. Pate was still in high school when he came under Rehling's wing. When Rehling moved to the University of Alabama, Pate followed. In 1974, like Murphy nine years earlier, Pate won the U.S. and Florida Amateur titles.

Jerry also helped the U.S. win the 1974 World Amateur Team championship and the 1975 Walker Cup matches. As an amateur he finished sixth in the Pensacola Open and tied for 18th in the U.S. Open, both in 1975.

It was another excellent year for Calvin Peete on the PGA TOUR and, even though he did not win as he did in 1979, his overall pay for the year did improve.

For example, while he did win the Greater Milwaukee Open in 1979, he missed the cut 10 times in 26 starts en route to a $122,481 year. In 1980, physical problems forced him to withdraw from three tournaments, but in the 23 events in which he went at least 36 holes, he did not miss a cut. His stroke average also came down considerably.

His best finish was a tie for third in the IVB-Philadelphia Classic with 65-68 the last two days, and he had five other top 10 finishes.

Although a late starter on the Tour, it is quite evident that Calvin is here to stay for quite a while.

Calvin was 23 years old when he first picked up a golf club back in 1966. The game was of no interest to him because he had to struggle to make a living for himself and his family.

Born in Detroit, Mich., Calvin spent most of his life on a Florida farm with his 18 brothers and sisters — through two marriages by his father. He was forced to drop out of school at an early age.

"Like so many black families," Peete said, "most of us kids had to get jobs as soon as we were old enough to work so we could help out with the expenses."

While still a teen-ager, Peete got into the business of selling goods to migrant farm workers. The field hands had little chance of getting into the city stores, so Peete would pack clothes, rings, watches, jewelry and anything else he could squeeze into his station wagon and take off. Wherever the migrant workers went, Peete was not far behind. From Florida it was a series of selling stops along dusty roads as far north as Rochester, N.Y.

Peete had friends in Rochester, and would end his Summer's trek with them. Each year his New York buddies would invite him to play golf.

"I always turned them down," Peete said. "I thought the game was silly. Who wants to chase a little ball around under the hot sun? How could that be fun?"

Finally, in 1966, Calvin tried the game with his friends and he was hooked. He recalls: "Just about that same time I saw a tournament on television and learned that Jack Nicklaus was making around $200,000 a year chasing that ball. I figured I could be happy with one-third that amount, so I decided to give it a try." Without the help of a teaching pro, Calvin began practicing and playing virtually all the time.

Always a natural athlete, Peete improved rapidly and he began to play in amateur tournaments wherever he could. Eventually he entered the PGA TOUR's Qualifying School. Like so many others, Peete failed on his first try. And the second. But he made it the third time, in the Spring of 1975.

Life on the PGA TOUR has not been easy for Mark Pfeil, but the soft-spoken product of the University of Southern California did reach a major goal in 1980. He won the Tallahassee Open.

Over the years, he says he has not thought positively enough, but that week at the Killbuck Golf and Country Club, the competitiveness came out, and he held on for a narrow victory.

Mark held a three-stroke lead after his birdie at the 15th hole, but bogeys followed at the 16th and 17th. The 18th at Killbuck is no piece of cake, but after a good drive, he placed a four-iron close enough for an easy two putt and the triumph over Mark Lye and Bill Rogers.

"Yes, I was nervous after those bogeys," he said, "but I felt I've played long enough to have the experience to handle the situation at the 18th."

That was Mark's lone top ten finish, but there were several other occasions when one off round cost him dearly. For example, he tied for 14th in the Byron Nelson Classic after a last-day 74.

His earnings of $52,704 left him just shy of the top 60, but that was more than he had won during his first four years combined. He now believes, with that taste of success, he can go on and achieve what he knows he can do.

Pfeil comes from good golfing stock. Both his parents are players, his father a 10-handicap, his mother a 12. And it was with them, at the Palos Verdes Country Club, that Pfeil first sampled the Old Scottish Game at age 10.

Mark played little competitive golf as a junior, but in high school at Palos Verdes he made rapid progress, and in his junior year, he won the California Interscholastic Federation title.

After two years at El Camino Junior College, Pfeil moved on to Southern Cal, where he achieved All-American honors twice.

He turned professional in 1974 and graduated from the Fall, 1975, Qualifying School. After earning less than $500, he returned to the Q-School in Fall, 1976. This time the lesson took, and the 1973 Walker Cup team member has since worked his game into shape to be a contender in Tour competition.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—11; in money—9; top ten finishes—3; stroke avg.—72.00.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Winner of 114 tournaments around the world, including the 1959, 1968 and 1974 British Opens. Winner of South African Open 11 times since 1956. Seven-time winner Australian Open and five-time winner World Piccadilly Match Play. Individual titleist in 1965 and 1977 World Cup. Winner of World Series of Golf (old format) in 1965, 1968 and 1972. Other victories include: 1957 Australian PGA, 1972 and 1974 Brazilian Open, and 1976 South African Dunlop Masters. Member World Golf Hall of Fame. 1980 Chile Open.

If you look at it from a dollar-and-cents standpoint, it was Gary Player's poorest year on the PGA TOUR since 1966, but the South African spent much of his time in 1980 playing the golf courses of the world.

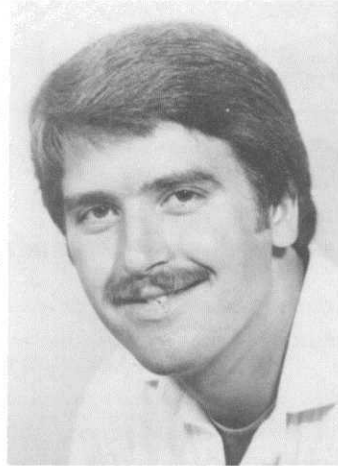

His best finish in 11 starts was a tie for third in the Heritage Classic, and he also tied for sixth in the Masters Tournament and tied for eighth in the Tournament Players Championship. Those finishes can serve as indicators that he still can be his best when the competition is the toughest.

The only time he missed the 36-hole cut was in the U.S. Open, but, strangely enough, just before the week at Baltusrol, the heads of two of his woods were severely damaged. He tried desperately to get them repaired and to find other suitable clubs, but to little avail.

His iron game was not as sharp over the year as it has been in the past. Although he did not play enough rounds to be in the Official Statistics, it should be noted that his 28.52 putts per round were fewer than Jerry Pate, who led that department, and his .553 average for hitting greens in regulation was the poorest.

Without question, one of the great players of all time, Player, in 1978, became the 11th man in Tour history to win three in a row when he came from seven back with a last-day 64 to win the Masters. He was seven back starting the last day at the Tournament of Champions, and won. The next week in Houston, he trailed by three and still managed to grab the brass ring.

1980 STATISTICS: 1st, Driving Distance, 274.3

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Michigan State Amateur champion, 1975, 1977.

Whenever Dan Pohl hits a ball with a club, he tries to hit it as hard as he can. That zest for power helped to make him an outstanding baseball player at Mt. Pleasant High School in Michigan, although he gained All-State status as a pitcher.

When he played golf, he tried to apply the same power, and for most of his life, has been hitting golf balls past his rivals. This past year, in fact, he was the longest driver on Tour in the Official Statistics, averaging 274.3 yards during 96 rounds of play.

Until he learned to throttle it back with the driver, he wasn't having the success he wanted. "It's always been natural for me to hit the ball hard," he said, "but I had to learn to control it and hit it both ways."

He did so, and the result was $105,008 in winnings for the year, finishing 44th on the money list.

Although he started in the game at age five, baseball and basketball were his first loves. He was so competitive, though, that he wanted to play everything. He played four years of high school golf, and had improved enough by his senior year that "Steve Robbins, my high school coach, wrote to several colleges. Arizona responded, so that was where I went."

Even today, he credits Robbins and Arizona coach John Gibson with helping him the most.

He earned his Tour card on his second attempt, in June of 1978, but the following 12 months profited him only $1,047. He went back to the school in June of 1979 and regained his playing privileges.

With new vigor, he attempted to qualify for the Canadian Open and Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic, but could gain only alternate status. He didn't get in either one.

The next week, he qualified for the Western Open, and suddenly, he was in the spotlight. With three holes to play on Sunday afternoon at the Butler National Golf Club, Dan Pohl was in the lead.

"I had played solid all day," he said, "but you can't believe how pumped up I was. I thought I was putting good swings on it, but the ball started to act like it was shot out of a cannon. I hit every approach shot over the greens on the last three, and bogeyed each one of them."

He tied for third, only one stroke out of the Larry Nelson-Ben Crenshaw playoff, won by Nelson. Nevertheless, he won $17,400, and he was here to stay.

He had five top 10 finishes in 1980, with a solo second in the Bing Crosby his best. A final-round 67 at Pebble Beach was worth $32,400. A few weeks later, he tied for third at the Bay Hill Classic.

T8—Pensacola Open. T9—Canadian Open, Quad Cities Open.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—28; in money—22; top ten finishes—7; stroke avg.—71.44.

Just to give you an idea of how well Don Pooley played in 1980, he increased his money winnings by $145,041 over the previous year. Only Lee Trevino made a larger jump.

There was a reason, though. After a satisfactory 1978 when his game was showing positive signs, he suffered through 1979 with muscle spasms in his back and tendinitis in his left hand. He won only $6,932.

In November and December of that year, he played the mini-tours in Phoenix, won two of the events and played well enough in the others to collect close to $12,000. He was healthy again.

His wife Margaret was to have a baby early in January, so he skipped the first month of the Tour. He tried to qualify for the Bing Crosby, and did not make it. He tried again the next week for the Hawaiian Open, and was second alternate. On Tuesday night, while at home in Tucson, he received a call from the Island, that he was in. Without a practice round, Don tied for 14th, won $6,063 and was on his way to the banner year.

"I made some changes in my set-up to a more open stance," he said, "and in my putting, to be more erect, but winning $100,000 never entered my mind back then." He tied for 24th in the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open the week after Hawaii, and was fourth alone in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open. In three weeks, he won more than $20,000. He is sure it was the Lord's doing.

During mid-summer, he had a splendid stretch of four top 10 finishes in six events, with a tie for second in Atlanta his best.

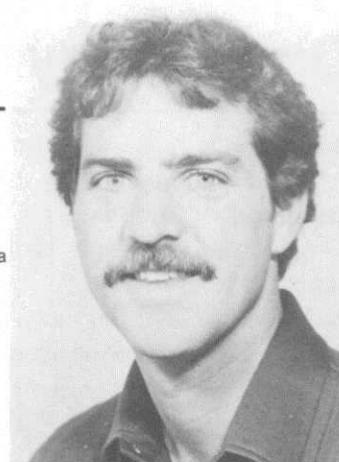

The victory he wanted came at the B.C. Open in late August. He was tied with Trevino at 10-under par 203 after three, and his closing 68 gave him a one-stroke margin over Peter Jacobsen, and Trevino slipped into a tie for third.

Don says he has been playing golf for as long as he can remember. He received his first set of clubs on his seventh birthday. His father was — and still is — an avid golfer and they play in father-son events at Victoria Country Club in Riverside, Calif.

He improved at each level of competition, and was the No. 1 man on his Riverside High School team and then played No. 1 on the University of Arizona team.

He played the mini-tours for a while after college, and it wasn't until his third attempt at the Qualifying School in the Fall of 1975, that he obtained his card. He won only $2,139 that first year, and promptly lost his privileges. Undaunted, he went back into the School in the Fall of 1976, regained it and has been on Tour ever since.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Arizona State Amateur and Southwest Open champions, both 1972. Medalist, 1979 U.S.-Japan Team Matches.

When Tom Purtzer is playing well, he will battle anyone in the game down to the wire. But, the big hitter from Phoenix occasionally goes through streaks of inconsistency, and he will tell you that is the one area of his biggest concern.

Even though he had his finest money year in 1980, he missed the 36-hole cut 11 times in 29 starts. Yet, there were weeks such as at the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic when he chased Lee Trevino to the final hole before losing by one stroke. He also tied for second behind Craig Stadler in the Bob Hope Desert Classic with a 68-69-68 finish.

Just after the Memphis tournament, he raced home, and five days later, his wife, Jacqueline, presented him with their first child, a daughter.

For most of the year, he felt he struck the ball reasonably well, but his putting was a little inconsistent. In the PGA TOUR Official Statistics, he ranked eighth in Driving Distance with 269.4 yards and tied for fourth among the Eagle Leaders with 11. In the Par Breakers category, he tied for 10th with Curtis Strange, playing 18.8 per cent of his holes in sub-par figures.

Tom Purtzer got an early start in golf because his father, Horace, enjoyed the game.

"Dad was a good golfer," Purtzer said, in recalling his own background in the game. "I guess he was a two or a three handicapper when I was very young. He wanted both of his sons to play the game and Paul and I were given cut-down clubs. We started hitting the ball, I guess, when we were eight or nine.

"Meanwhile, I liked baseball and football and played both. When I got to high school I gave up baseball. I played high school football and then concentrated on golf."

Purtzer continued to play golf for Arizona State and became one of the better collegiate players. He also won both the Arizona State amateur title and the Southwest Open in 1972.

The next year, 1973, Tom won the Broadmoor Men's Invitational and also was named to the All-America Collegiate golf team. He turned pro not long after graduating with a business degree.

Tom failed to earn his playing privileges at the PGA TOUR'S Qualifying School twice. He recalls: "The first time was only by two shots but the second was by a bunch."

Tom continued to season his game by competing on mini-tours in Arizona and Southern California and also went abroad in 1975. It was during a Far Eastern swing that year that Purtzer won the Thailand Open.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—28; in money—27; top ten finishes—13; stroke avg.—70.78.

1980 STATISTICS: 1st, Driving Accuracy, .795. 2d, Greens in Regulation, .716. 4th, Birdie Leaders, 358. 6th, Scoring Average, 70.78. T10th, Par Breakers, .188.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: 1976 Western Athletic Conference champion. Winner, 1976 Pacific Coast Amateur. Collegiate All-America 1974, 1975. Low Amateur, 1976 U.S. Open. 1980 Member, U.S. World Cup Team.

Mike Reid does not mind admitting that the success he achieved in 1980 "was beyond my wildest dreams."

He felt he had an authentic chance of elevating himself up to the top 60 money winners, and thus gain exempt status for the first time in his four years on Tour. But, to win $206,097 and finish ninth on the list? That didn't seem likely.

Yet, by the time Mike was through with the Michelob-Houston Open, in early May, he already had won enough to assure himself of a place in the elusive top 60. From that point on, he was grabbing for the gold medal.

While he did not win, the quiet man from Provo, Utah, finished third four times and had 13 finishes among the top 10 in 28 starts. During one spring stretch, he was third alone in New Orleans, then tied for third in Houston. After a tie for 13th at the Colonial National Invitation, he came back with another third alone in the Memorial Tournament.

His secret is accuracy and consistency. He believes he can play well on any type of course, and he tries to model his game after the likes of Billy Casper, Gene Littler and Lou Graham. "Week after week," he said, "when they were playing well, they always finished up high."

Mike led the Official Statistics in Driving Accuracy, putting the ball in the fairway 79.5 per cent of the time. He was second in Greens in Regulation, and in the top 10 in three other categories.

Mike's father was a Colonel in the Air Force when he retired, but during his growing-up days, Mike was in many different cities. At an early age, he realized golf was a game he could play alone, and it was a game that gave him something in common with others no matter where they lived.

His older brother, Bill, is head professional at Sahalee Country Club in Seattle, and has been Mike's biggest teacher. He also credits the John Geerstens, Senior and Junior, at Monterey Peninsula Country Club with assisting him.

Mike went to Brigham Young University, and was a teammate of Mike Brannan, Jim Nelford, John Fought and Pat McGowan. The first time he attempted to get his Tour card, he made it, in the Fall of 1976. He progressed up the ladder the next three years, and his closest bout with victory was in the 1978 Pensacola Open. He lost in a playoff to Mac McLendon.

In December of 1979, he took a major step. He was married, and ever since, he has said that Randolyn has played an important role in his success. "I'm more at peace with myself," he says, "and not fighting the game as much as I once did. Besides, it is nice to have someone out there pulling for you besides your caddy."

Those who know Jack Renner believe he will have a big year in 1981. He is a goal-oriented young man, and he always has set his goals high. He knew at an early age that he wanted to be a professional on the PGA TOUR and he worked tirelessly to reach that end.

During his first two full years on Tour, he impressed everyone with his skills, and in 1979, he won $182,808 plus the Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Classic.

Last year, he became ill with mononucleosis during the Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open and he missed the next month of play. It was well into the year before he regained his full strength and confidence.

The first positive sign that he was back came in the IVB-Philadelphia Classic as he tied for third. In early September, he tied for fourth in the Pleasant Valley-Jimmy Fund Classic, and finally, he was second alone to Ben Crenshaw in the Anheuser-Busch Classic. He was delighted with his play at Napa, Calif.

"I felt I handled myself well," he said, "and I feel better about myself as a player. At mid-year, there were nights when I had my doubts."

He added, "I know I have a lot of work to do on my game, and you can be certain that I will be hitting a lot of golf balls between now and the first of the year."

Jack is easily identified. Rail thin, he always wears a white cap, similar to the type Ben Hogan wore for years. However, Jack says he has always worn that style because it is lightweight, comfortable, and during his years of growing up around Palm Springs, "I needed something to protect my head from the sun."

As a youngster, he was the king of the junior tournaments in the San Diego area. He won such titles as the 1972 World Junior and the 1973 United States Junior. His short game always has been excellent, and he believes he refined it by playing so many par three courses as a youth.

During his school days, he chose not to play varsity golf because he felt he could progress more rapidly by working on his own game, rather than spending the time travelling to matches.

The Renners are an avid golf family. Sister Jane has been a part of the LPGA Tour for five years and younger brother Jim has been a professional for two years. When one of them needs help, they seek out a member of the family.

Bill Rogers knows that one of these years, he is going to break out and win a few. In the meantime, this gifted young man is piling up the cash with numerous top 10 finishes.

An aggressive player who seldom has the ball out of play, Bill had two second-place finishes and a total of nine top 10's in 1980. He led the Tallahassee Open by two strokes after three rounds and finally finished tied for second, one in back of Mark Pfeil. Three weeks later, he was runner-up to Tom Watson for the second straight year in the Byron Nelson Classic.

He shook his head after his Nelson performance. "I'm too good a player not to have won another tournament by now, but Tom is playing as well as it is possible to play."

While his only U. S. victory was in the 1978 Bob Hope Desert Classic, he has enjoyed more success overseas. Last fall, he won the Suntory Open in Japan, giving him three foreign titles in the last four years.

In 1979, Bill won $230,500 and that stands as a record for the most money won without the benefit of a victory. "If I couldn't have won a tournament, I suppose that is a nice record to have," he said, smiling.

"The more times you get close to the top, the easier you can handle it," he added. "The mental aspect of the game and your swing work better together under pressure situations." In the last two years, he has had a total of 21 top 10 finishes.

As an example of how straight he is, he was third in Driving Accuracy in the PGA TOUR Official Statistics.

Bill started to play the game at age nine in Montgomery, Ala., and was playing competitively by the time he was 13 and the family was living in Texarkana, Texas. Although his father and brother started him, it was Jerry Robinson, professional at North Ridge Country Club in Texarkana, who taught him the fine points of the game.

While attending the University of Houston, he was a roommate of Bruce Lietzke and the latter nicknamed him the "Panther." As Bill recalls, "I was the jumpy type. I never wanted to miss anything and I still don't, but I have slowed down some."

Bill's father was a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force and from age three to six, he lived in Germany; from age six through eight, he lived in Morocco, North Africa. "Dad retired as a colonel and he still is a good player. He played in a lot of major Air Force tournaments when he was in the service."

In many ways, it was a satisfying year for Jim Simons on the PGA TOUR, but for the second straight year, he lost a tournament in a playoff. In 1979, John Fought edged him in the Buick-Goodwrench Open.

Last year in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open, Jim had a nine-under 62 the first day at Wethersfield Country Club and led by two. By late Sunday afternoon, he was tied with Howard Twitty at 18-under par 266. The playoff went to the sixth extra hole before Howard won with a birdie.

The 62 was the lowest round he has ever had in competition, and said it was the result of considerable practice. Jim is becoming known as an excellent teacher, too. In fact, after Wayne Levi won the Pleasant Valley-Jimmy Fund Classic, he said credit had to go to Jim for his putting help.

Jim's initial victory was in the 1977 First NBC-New Orleans Open and then he won the 1978 Memorial Tournament in a rather suspenseful style. Five times in the last seven holes, he saved par with one-putts; and, at the final hole, he made a 21-footer for par to win by one.

Jim Simons will be the first to say that his early years on the PGA TOUR were not up to expectations. He probably won't mention, however, that he was hampered with physical ailments. He had tendonitis in his left wrist, but more painful was his left shoulder which was diagnosed as a "looseness in the joint — a minor dislocation." It was the result of some "horsing-around" in his fraternity house at Wake Forest.

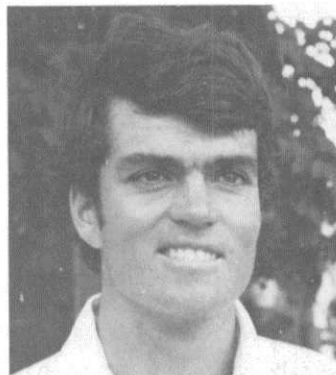

Simons was graduated from the Fall 1972 PGA TOUR Qualifying School and did not have an opportunity to compete in many events. During his first year on the Tour he was in considerable pain, mainly, it developed, because his injury had not yet been diagnosed properly. He recalls, "I was doing stretching exercises because I felt a tightness, but that was just the opposite of what I needed."

Jim's father started him in golf at Butler, Pa., Country Club at the age of nine. He lived on a farm and says now, "I'd ride over to the club on my bike in the morning and either play or hit balls most of the day and ride back in the evening."

He started competition at the age of 13 and his progress was rapid. He first enrolled at the University of Houston but, after a year, transferred to Wake Forest. He was on the 1971 Walker Cup team and remained overseas for the 1971 British Amateur, reaching the final round where he lost to Steve Melnyk.

In the 1971 U.S. Open at Merion, he gained national attention by leading the tournament after the third round. He finished in a tie for fifth and was low amateur. He also was low amateur in the 1972 Open at Pebble Beach. He turned pro that fall.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—30; in money—23; top ten finishes—4; stroke average—71.86.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: Winner 1976 and 1977 NCAA Championships. Winner, 1976 Porter Cup. Winner 1975 and 1977 PAC-8 Championships. Member, 1977 Walker Cup Team. Collegiate All-American 1976 and 1977.

Scott Simpson was as surprised as anyone when he won the $300,000 Western Open on the always difficult Butler National Golf Club course.

"My game was improving gradually," he said, "and that was the way I wanted it. I knew that if I continued to improve, I eventually would win. Then, all of a sudden, I made the big jump at the Western. Yes, I was surprised."

Scott was one stroke out of the lead after the first round, moved in front by a stroke after day two, and never was headed after that. Butler National is regarded as one of the most severe tests on the Tour, but Scott never was over par for his daily rounds of 70, 69, 70 and 72.

Scott had an excellent amateur record, winning the National Collegiate titles in 1976 and 1977 for the University of Southern California. "It was after I won it the first time that I thought I would make a career in golf, and someday turn professional. I felt if I could win over a field such as that, then maybe I had a chance."

He also won two PAC-8 titles for the Trojans and was a member of Uncle Sam's Walker Cup Team in 1977. He seemed to be a sure thing.

Yet, he met the disappointment that so many young players have had to face, twice failing to make it through the Tour's tough Qualifying School. He finally made it the third time, in the fall of 1978.

He was pleased with his first year on Tour, in 1979. He won $53,084 and was 74th on the money list. "I made money in 22 of 33 tournaments," he said, "and I thought that was pretty good consistency for the first year. I was pleased with it."

There were other highlights to 1980 for Scott. On the famed No. 2 Course at Pinehurst, he had a final-round 64 in the Hall of Fame Classic and finished second by one stroke to Phil Hancock. He considered that one of his all-time finest 18 holes.

Displaying an ability to play the toughest courses well, his other top ten finishes came at Riviera in the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open (tie 5), and at Muirfield Village in the Memorial Tournament (tie 8).

Scott started in the game as a caddy at age nine for his father, a scratch handicapper in the San Diego area in those days. He was 10 when he entered his first tournament and in the 10-and-under division, Jack Renner was the victor, but Scott tied his brother for fifth.

He knew then that he liked the competition. "My Dad also plays the trumpet, so I did too, but when I was 13, I knew it was either golf or the trumpet, and golf won out."

At age 16, he lost in the finals of the U. S. Junior Championships to Bob Byman — now his closest friend on Tour — and was third in the World Junior.

1980 SUMMARY: Tournaments entered—33; in money—26; top ten finishes—3; stroke avg.—71.43.

1980 STATISTICS: 6th, Driving Distance—270.3.

OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS: 1971, 1973 and 1975 Ryder Cup team. 1973 Australian Open champion.

J. C. Snead continued to be one of the busiest men on the PGA TOUR as he played in 32 events and only failed to go the distance on six occasions. More than anything, he felt it was his putting that kept him from the winners' circle for the fourth straight year.

One of the game's biggest hitters — he ranked sixth in Driving Distance, averaging 270.3 yards — he also had his moments in 1980 when his iron play was not as sharp as he would have liked.

His best finish was a tie for sixth in the Anheuser-Busch Classic and he pointed out that "I was striking the ball better than I have in some time," but the putts wouldn't drop.

Certainly one of the game's more colorful people, J. C. has a reputation of occasionally shying away from interviews, but those who follow the game closely know that once they take a few minutes to chat with him, they will be rewarded with one of the better stories of the day.

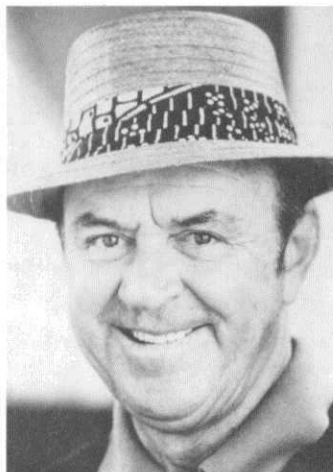

One of his strongest loves is hunting, and he will spend hours in search of game, especially around his home area of Hot Springs, Va. J. C. and his wife Sue also have a home at Sawgrass in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.

He has made the top 60 for the last 10 years. In 1978, when his earnings dipped to $63,561, he suffered a broken bone in his wrist in a farming accident in Hot Springs and was off the Tour for seven weeks. It happened shortly after he tied for second in the U.S. Open.

Jesse Carlyle, although constantly mentioned as the nephew of the legendary Sam Snead, stands on his own performance record. He was a superb athlete in other sports while growing up in Hot Springs, and at one time, sought a career in baseball. He was in the Washington Senators' farm system before turning to golf as a career in 1964.

He worked for head pro Charlie Beverage at the Century Country Club in Westchester County, N.Y. while twice failing to pass the PGA TOUR Qualifying Test. It was a total of four years before he earned his card in 1968. Following three so-so years, J. C. burst into prominence in 1971 by winning twice in a three-week period, at Tucson and Doral, immediately before and after the PGA Championship at Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

It probably is safe to say that no one in the history of the PGA TOUR has ever won a tournament the way Ed Sneed won his first.

It was in the fall of 1973, and he was in Australia. He won the New South Wales Open, eagling the 17th and holing a 10 footer at the 18th. He caught a plane that night for San Francisco, and thanks to the International dateline, arrived in Napa, Calif., in time for the Monday qualifier for the Kaiser International Open.

He went on to tie John Schlee at the end of regulation play, and won it all in a playoff.

Two other victories followed, the 1974 Greater Milwaukee Open and the 1977 Tallahassee Open as he defeated Lon Hinkle in a playoff.

His biggest disappointment had to be in the 1979 Masters Tournament. He led most of the way, and still had a three-stroke lead with three to go, but he bogeyed in to permit Fuzzy Zoeller and Tom Watson to tie him. Zoeller won the playoff on the second extra hole.

Characteristic of Ed Sneed, he came back to play well the rest of the year.

Possibly the finest stretch of golf he has ever played came in mid-summer of 1976 when he had two thirds, two fourths and a fifth in a six-tournament period.

Ed started to play golf at age 13 under the watchful eye of his grandfather in Roanoke, Va. He was an excellent basketball player in high school, and went on to Ohio State University to play golf and basketball. Eventually, he concentrated on his golf.

He earned his playing privileges in the fall of 1968, but only played the Tour part-time. He was working under head pro Walker Inman at Scioto Country Club in Columbus, Ohio.

During the next two years, his close friend, Tom Weiskopf, kept saying there was no reason why Ed should not be among the top 60 money winners each year. Tom proved correct, once Ed cracked the barrier in 1973.

Incidentally, Tom was the best man when Ed married Nancy, and Ed served in the same role for Tom and Jeanne.

After three-and-a-half years on the PGA TOUR, Craig Stadler emerged as one of the game's genuine stars. He won twice in 1980, starting with the first event of the year, the Bob Hope Desert Classic. Then he added the Greater Greensboro Open crown to his collection.

For the entire year, he won $206,291, and that is significant because it is more than the total amount he won prior to 1980.

He knew, and so did his close followers, that he would win on the Tour. It was a matter of being patient, learning to control his emotions and to work a little harder on his game. Dave Stockton, a close friend, gave Craig some sound advice along those lines just prior to the Hope; stressing the importance of the mental aspect of the game.

As the week moved along, he was tied with Larry Nelson after four rounds, but on the final afternoon at the Hope, Stadler turned in a superb five-under 67 at La Quinta and won by two strokes. At Greensboro he moved in front after two rounds and stayed there, finally winning by six.

Towards the end of the year, Craig decided to change his image. He lost approximately 20 pounds and said he felt much better because of it.

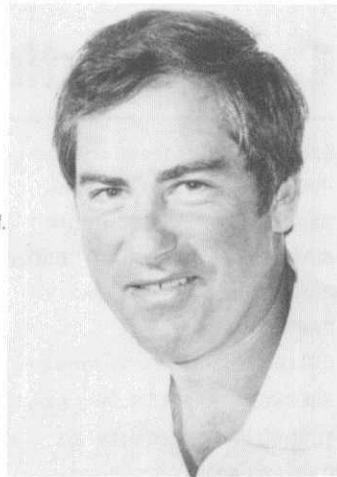

Before turning professional in 1975, Craig compiled an excellent amateur record, highlighted by his victory in the 1973 U.S. Amateur Championship at the Inverness Club in Toledo. "I just made everything that week," he said.

He had given some thought to leaving the University of Southern California after that triumph, but changed his mind. He went on to be an All-America choice for the Trojans in 1974 and 1975 and was named to the 1975 Walker Cup team.

His first attempt at qualifying for the PGA TOUR came in the fall of 1975 and he didn't make it. He did succeed in June of 1976. He said of his first six months on Tour, "I was just awful."

Craig first played the game at age five with the assistance of his father and really became interested in the game at age "eight or nine." Along the way, he won such titles as the World Junior championship, the San Diego City Amateur and the Southern California Interscholastic.

After the year he experienced in 1980, Dave Stockton knew something was not right with his golf swing; but he didn't know what it was.

He checked some old photos, and almost immediately realized that his swing plane had changed drastically. "I couldn't believe it," he said, now able to laugh about it. "It wasn't even close. I was picking the clubhead up right away and wasn't making much of a body turn at all."

When his earnings dipped to $35,600 in 1979 and to $23,652 last year for his lowest total since 1966, he knew there was a hitch somewhere.

For many years, Dave has been one of the better players on Tour and certainly one of golf's finest good-will ambassadors. He is in demand for clinics and exhibitions everywhere. An avid hunter and fisherman, he found the near-perfect combination when he was named the Director of Golf at the Keystone Resort in the high mountain country of Colorado.

Dave is a descendant of a Declaration of Independence signer from New Jersey. He started to play golf seriously at age 17, following an injury to his back in a surfing accident. Dave, just as his father, Gail, did, went to the University of Southern California and became captain of the golf team.

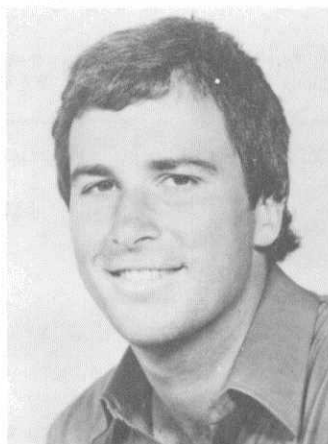

Even today, Dave's primary teacher is his father.

He turned professional after leaving school, but struggled for three years before winning the prestigious Colonial National Invitation in 1967. He was invited to the NIT as a Past Champions' choice.

While he has won a total of 11 times, his greatest triumphs have been in two PGAs. The first was in 1970 at Southern Hills in Tulsa, as he outdueled Arnold Palmer down the stretch. He won another in 1976 at the Congressional Country Club, holing a par-saving 13-footer on the final hole to edge Ray Floyd and Don January.

His most productive year was 1974 as he won three times. A brilliant 235-yard three wood shot at the difficult 18th hole at Riviera Country Club set up his one-stroke margin over Sam Snead and John Mahaffey. He also won the Quad Cities Open and the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open. After the latter, he received a phone call from then President Gerald Ford. He was just leaving the press tent when the call came.

Greatness has been predicted for Curtis Strange almost since he started winning junior golf tournaments in and around his home state of Virginia.

This past year, he took a huge step toward that end as he won two tournaments, compiled nine top 10 finishes and won $271,888 to finish third behind Tom Watson and Lee Trevino. His name was evident among the leaders in several important Official Statistic categories, such as scoring leaders, greens in regulation percentage, birdie leaders and par breakers.

He once said, "Physically, I've always had the talent, but I have had to learn how to use it. Patience and maturity are two big keys in the game and once I learned how to control myself and my game, I was able to improve."

He improved so much last year, in fact, that Golf Digest magazine named him the "most improved golfer" of the year.

He showed considerable inner strength as he won the Michelob-Houston Open. A second-day 63 — with a 29 on the back nine — gave him a three-stroke lead and he increased it to six after three rounds. He managed a par 71 the last afternoon, but Lee Trevino turned in a blazing 65 to tie him. However, Curtis maintained his composure and won with a birdie on the first extra hole.

His other victory was by two strokes in the Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Classic. He was second alone in the Quad Cities Open and tied for third in the MONY-Tournament of Champions and Greater Milwaukee Open. His level of consistency improved dramatically. He made the cut in all but three 1980 events, as compared to missing it 10 times the year before.

This year, the Strange family will cause some confusion on the Tour. Curtis' twin brother, Allan, qualified in the school last fall. They are identical, born four minutes apart, and not only look alike, but also sound alike.

Curtis started to play golf at age seven, "and by the time I was eight, I was playing every day."

His father was a golf professional and owned the White Sands Country Club in Virginia Beach, Va. Unfortunately, he passed away when Curtis was 14, and then, as Curtis explained, "Chandler Harper, the Hall of Famer, became my teacher."

His first taste of success came when he won the Virginia State Junior at age 15 and he won his first important title in 1973, the Southeastern Amateur. However, he said his biggest thrill came when he won the 1975 Eastern Amateur. "My father won the very first Eastern in 1957, so that had special meaning to me."

Curtis carried such titles as the Western Amateur and the National Collegiate with him when he first attempted to earn his PGA TOUR card in the fall of 1976, but he missed. He came back in the spring of 1977 and made it.

It was a just reward for big Mike Sullivan to win a PGA TOUR event before the end of 1980. The way he started the year, it appeared as if he might replace Tom Watson as the leading money winner.

Mike opened with a tie for second in the Bob Hope Desert Classic, two strokes in back of winner Craig Stadler. The next week, he was third alone in the Phoenix Open. In the first two weeks, he won $44,600 and displayed the skills of a superstar.

He had won, in those two outings, more than he had won in any full year since starting on Tour in January of 1977.

Three weeks later, Mike suffered a severe back muscle spasm, and was gone from the first tee for five weeks. When he did come back for the Tournaments Players Championship, he missed three straight cuts, and every swing was a struggle.

The old form started to return at Tallahassee and he tied for sixth, but it wasn't until mid-summer that Mike finally put his game back together.

His victory came in the next-to-last individual event, the Southern Open. A second-day 63 gave him the lead he never relinquished, winning by five strokes. The next week, he nearly did it again, finishing in a tie for second at Pensacola.

When he added up his paychecks for the year, it came to $147,759.

Mike played a lot of golf with his father when he was a youngster. "He was a scratch amateur, and taught me everything in those days."

Living in Ocala, Fla., his father took him to see the Florida Citrus Open in Orlando, and the old Greater Jacksonville Open. He went to the University of Florida briefly — and had Andy Bean for a roommate — but he wanted to play golf, and not go to school.

He missed twice in attempting to qualify for the Tour, but made it in the fall of 1976. When he finished fourth in the 1977 Doral-Eastern Open, he felt he was on his way, but he started to press for success. He won $8,800 at Doral, and only $11,170 for the entire year.

He improved considerably in 1978. In the Buick Open, he lost in a playoff to Jack Newton of Australia. The next year was something of a disappointment for Mike, but it still was not too bad. Then came his great start in 1980, "when I played like I felt I should play. I believe I have the game to play well."

The Doug Tewell story is one of the more inspiring on the PGA TOUR. Early in 1979, he came within a putt or two of leaving the Tour entirely. Today, he is one of the game's better players, especially after winning twice in 1980.

He knows it has taken a lot of hard work and mental discipline, but says it is difficult to pinpoint the reason for the drastic improvement.

After the 1979 Bay Hill Classic in March, he was so discouraged with his progress in the game, that he was ready to pack it all in and look for another job. A friend of his encouraged him to "work as hard as you can for the rest of the year, and then see what happens."

He did just that, and won $84,500 for the year. Following the same advice into 1980, Doug played reasonably well early in the year. He missed the cut in the Tournament Players Championship and then went to the Sea Pines Heritage Classic at Harbour Town the next week. After two rounds of 69-66, he was tied for the lead with Jerry Pate. He still was tied after three, but now with John Mahafey. The final day, Pate tied him at the end of regulation play, and Doug won his inaugural with a par on the first extra hole.

Buoyed by that success, he continued to play well, and broke through again in the IVB-Philadelphia Classic. He was 10-shots back after two rounds, but closed brilliantly with 65-67 to win by one over Tom Kite.

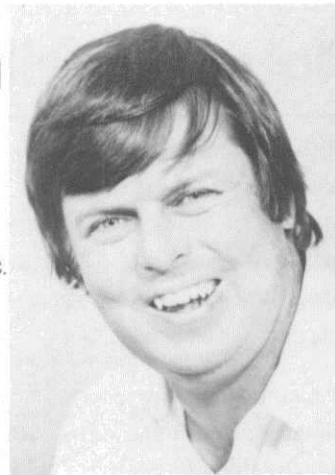

Doug started to play golf at about age 12 and his first teacher was Labron Harris, Sr. at the Lakeside club in Stillwater, Okla. The Tewell family had a membership there.

Doug and Mark Hayes were classmates and golf teammates through Stillwater High and Oklahoma State. "I was a steady player all through school, but I didn't think I was good enough to play on the Tour, so I chose to be a club professional," he said. Incidentally, he was the runner-up three times in the Oklahoma State Amateur, losing once to Mark.

He worked as an assistant professional for two years and then moved on as head pro at the Pinetop Country Club in Pinetop, Ariz. During the off seasons, he worked at Camelback in Phoenix. In June, 1975, with his Class A PGA membership in hand, he joined the Tour, but it was not easy. Winning $33,162 in 1977 helped to encourage him.

In 1978, he was hurting for most of the year, first with a sore shoulder and then a bad heel. He won only $16,629 and was totally discouraged. Fortunately, he weathered the year and the first two months of 1979.

A few years ago, when Leonard Thompson was having problems with his golf swing, he went to Arnold Palmer and asked for help. A year later, in 1977, the result was $107,293.

Last spring, maybe inspired by Arnold's presence and playing in the Bay Hill Classic, Leonard chased Dave Eichelberger through the miserable weather the last afternoon and finished second to earn his biggest paycheck of the year.

He went on to play well the rest of the 1980, too, and he finished with his most lucrative year ever, winning $138,826. He used closing rounds of 68-67 to tie for second in the Canadian Open and compiled five other top 10 finishes.

The last couple of years, Leonard has suffered from knee problems, and there are some weeks when he is not able to play at all. Yet, when he did tee it up, he was consistent, making the cut in 23 of 28 starts.

Leonard joined the Tour in the fall of 1971, earning his card in his second attempt at the Qualifying School. He had sharpened his game at Wake Forest University, and was a teammate of such players as Lanny Wadkins and Joe Inman.

He progressed steadily and in 1974 won the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic. When his earnings totaled $122,349, his followers were sure he would continue on to stardom.

It was shortly afterwards that Leonard started to fight the scales. When his weight reached 230, he decided it was time to start a conditioning program. In mid-November of 1974, he went on a crash diet and in 3½ months, lost nearly 50 pounds.

"Suddenly," he said, "I couldn't stop losing. I went to a low of 183 pounds and didn't have any strength."

His earnings dropped almost as rapidly during the next two years, and that was when he decided it was time to seek out Arnold.

At the end of his successful 1977, he won the Pensacola Open by holing a 50-foot putt on the final hole for a birdie and a two-stroke edge on Curtis Strange.

A native North Carolinian, one of the highlights of his career was the course record seven-under par 29 on the back nine at Pinehurst No. 2, set in the 1977 Colgate Hall of Fame Classic.

Lee Trevino continues to be one of the great stories in sports. At age 40, he keeps getting better, and in 1980 enjoyed one of his finest years on Tour, and certainly it was his best money year.

While he did win $385,814 — nearly $150,000 more than he had ever won in a single season — to finish second to Tom Watson, his most satisfying achievement was winning the Vardon Trophy for low stroke average for a fifth time.

Watson had won the Vardon Trophy the three previous years, so Lee snapped Tom's domination, but his average of 69.73 for 82 rounds was the lowest on Tour since Sam Snead's 69.23 in 1950.

Lee had three victories, his biggest being in the Tournament Players Championship when he had to beat back the determined challenges of Ben Crenshaw, Watson, Seve Ballesteros, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player. He also won the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic and used a final-round 65 to win the San Antonio-Texas Open. That gave him 25 Tour triumphs.

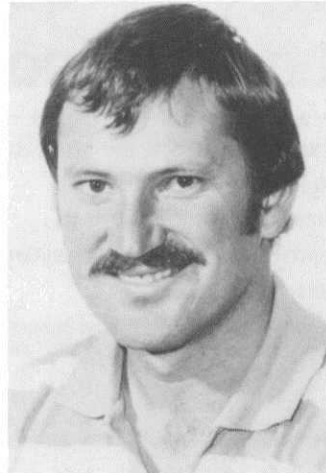

He lost the Michelob-Houston Open in a playoff to Curtis Strange, and also was second in the Hawaiian Open and New Orleans Open. He finished with 13 top 10's, and made the cut in all 21 starts.

In the last three years, he has won $853,269. Not bad for a fellow who had back surgery for a herniated disc in November of 1976.

Trevino tied for 54th in the 1966 U.S. Open at Olympic Club in San Francisco, and he didn't try the Tour again until a year later at Baltusrol. He placed sixth in that U.S. Open, and was on the Tour to stay. He was chosen "Rookie-of-the-Year" for 1967. Twelve months after Baltusrol, the quick-quipping Merry Mex from Dallas was entertaining everyone at the marguerita party at Oak Hill CC, Rochester, where he had just won the 1968 U.S. Open.

Lee won the U.S. Open again in 1971, defeating Jack Nicklaus in a playoff at Merion, and in a span of five weeks that summer he added the Canadian and British Open titles to his fast-growing collection. He was named "Player of the Year" practically by acclamation.

Howard Twitty knows he may never play again play the game as well as he did in a stretch of 3½ tournaments in mid-summer. He went through 14 rounds with 13 of them being in the 60's and was 57-under par.

One of those weeks ended in a victory, as he defeated Jim Simons on the sixth extra hole in the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open. In the others, he was second in the Greater Milwaukee Open, fifth in the Quad Cities Open, and, after the victory, he started 64-66 in the IVB-Philadelphia Classic but then the bubble burst.

Up until that point, he had not been playing as well as he felt he should, but once the streak ended, he did continue to play well through the end of the year. He tied for fifth in the PGA Championship and twice finished third.

"I've worked on a couple of keys," he said of his sudden turn around, "but nothing major. I am getting set up and aligned easily."

Howard's first Tour victory came the year before in the B. C. Open when he outplayed two close friends, Tom Purtzer and Doug Tewell on the 72nd hole. They were tied through 71, but Howard managed a par on the home hole and that gave him the victory.

One of the biggest men on the Tour at six-feet-five, 220 pounds, he once was asked why he didn't concentrate on football. With a grin, he replied, "I like to keep my blood in my body."

Twitty believes now that his ample physical proportions probably slowed his progress in golf at the start. He started to play at age 10 but it wasn't until he was a senior in high school in Phoenix that his game started to develop.

"I was about 6' 3" when I was a sophomore," he recalls, "and I was terrible. I guess I just needed time to catch up with my body. I didn't have the coordination that I needed."

As a sophomore and junior at Arizona State, Twitty really showed progress, however. He won the important Sunnehanna and Porter Cup amateur events and, when a senior, he finished right behind the Texas co-champions, Ben Crenshaw and Tom Kite, in the NCAA championship.

Twitty turned pro in 1973 and twice failed in the PGA TOUR Qualifying School before meeting success in June 1975. That was the same year he also won the Thailand Open during a second trip to the Far East circuit.

When things are going right for Lanny Wadkins, there may not be anyone better. And, it doesn't seem to make any difference how difficult the course or the conditions may be.

In 1977, for example, Lanny came from well off the pace to tie Gene Littler in the PGA Championship at Pebble Beach, and then won it all on the third extra hole. Three weeks later on the demanding South Course at Firestone Country Club, he shot a record 13-under par 267 to win the World Series of Golf by five strokes.

Late that same year, he suffered a torn rib muscle on his right side while lifting cases from the trunk of his car, and his play suffered, but he bounced back with a great year in 1979. He won the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open on the famed Riviera course, and a month later captured the Tournament Players Championship at Sawgrass in conditions beyond belief.

There were wind gusts up to 45 miles per hour the last afternoon, and Lanny calmly went on to finish with a five-under 283 and win by five, over Tom Watson. More than half of the field that year did not break 300.

This past year, his earnings dropped off again, but he did manage to become another of the Tour's $1 million winners.

Lanny enjoyed a brilliant amateur career, highlighted by a victory in the 1970 U.S. Amateur. It wasn't any surprise when he became an immediate success on the PGA TOUR. After earning his player's card in the Fall of 1971, he went on to with the 1972 Sahara Invitational.

His superb play continued through 1973, winning $200,455, with victories in the Byron Nelson Classic in Dallas and the USI Classic in Sutton, Mass. His game started to sag in 1974. As the year progressed, he found it difficult to maintain his energy. In the fall his ailment was diagnosed as a diseased gall bladder, and in early December he underwent an operation for its removal.

Going against doctor's orders, he returned to the PGA TOUR in less than three months. Still weak, he developed bad habits and he admits it wasn't until mid-1976 that he was able to get his game back in its original groove.

There is little left to be said about the brilliance of Tom Watson except that he has been the single most dominant figure in the world of golf for the last four years, and there is no reason to believe he will not continue in the role for many years.

He has been the PGA Player-of-the-Year for the last four years, and the leading money winner on Tour over the same stretch. His three-year hold on the Vardon Trophy did slip away as Lee Trevino managed a brilliant 69.73 average to Tom's 69.95.

He won six tournaments — plus the British Open — giving him 22 PGA TOUR victories in four years. For the third straight year, he increased the Tour's money record to $530,808, and thus became the first man to shatter the half-million dollar mark.

Since he won $1,065 for a tie for 28th in his first start on Tour in the 1971 Kaiser International Open, this personable fellow has elevated himself to a position with the all-time greats. He is a tireless worker, even amazing his tutor, Byron Nelson.

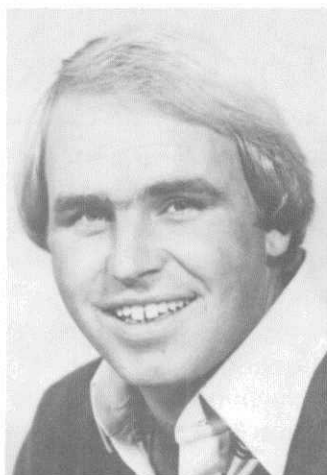

He turned in one of his more amazing feats in the spring when he won three straight starts, and through those 12 rounds, never was out of the lead. He won the MONY-Tournament of Champions at LaCosta, and the next week won the New Orleans Open. After skipping a week, he won the Byron Nelson Classic for a third straight year.

Earlier in the year, he won the Andy Williams-San Diego Open and the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open. In mid-summer, he dominated play in winning the British Open for a third time, and closed the year with a victory in the World Series of Golf, posting three rounds of 65.

In 22 starts, he had 16 top-10 finishes, and at year's end, had made the cut in 28 straight events over two years.

Tom was only six years old when his father, a scratch golfer, exposed him to the game. He became a four-time winner of the Missouri State Amateur and played for three years at Stanford University before graduating in 1971 with a degree in psychology. While in high school, Tom also starred in football and basketball.

There were three parts to the year for D.A. Weibring, and he'd just as soon forget about the middle one. That was when he suffered with elbow problems and found it difficult to play the game at all.

Before and after, though, he played well and for the third straight year, increased his earnings to $78,611. It is easy to assume that if he had remained healthy, he would have topped the magic $100,000 mark.

Early in the year, he came close to winning for a second time. A final-round 65 gave him a tie with Tom Watson in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open, but Tom won it with a par on the first extra hole.

He improved on his stroke average, his top 10 finishes with four, and in his tournaments entered—cuts missed ratio from the year before.

He also emerged as one of the Tour's more colorful personalities. In numerous clinics and exhibitions, he played the straight man for Peter Jacobsen.

D.A. earned his first victory in the Quad Cities Open in 1979, and the way it happened, he couldn't have been more delighted.

His father had suffered a mild heart attack on the Sunday of the Western Open, approximately 10 days earlier. "That gave us quite a scare," D.A. said.

"I wasn't going to play in Milwaukee that next week, but Dad wanted me to, so I did. I felt the thing that would make him the happiest was to play well, and I felt I did."

"The Quad Cities is close to my home," he said, pointing out that Quincy, Ill., is about 200 miles from the tournament site. "If I had to pick one place I would want to win my first tournament, the Quad Cities would be it."

While the victory was extremely satisfying to the graduate of Illinois State University, what pleased him most was the fact that his father had recovered enough to be at Oakwood with his mother to see him do it.

D. A. — that stands for Donald Albert — joined the Tour in June of 1977, earning his card on his third attempt at the qualifying school. In his first full year of 1978, he won $41,052, finishing 75th on the money list, and a tie for third in Quad Cities was his best finish. He had five top 10 finishes for the year.

He explained how the use of his initials came about.

"My father's name also is Donald Albert, and when I was a youngster, Mom decided she didn't want me to be called 'Little Don,' or 'Junior,' so she started to call me D. A. It has been with me ever since."

Although Tom Weiskopf was not able to regain the winning touch again in 1980, it was a little better year for him. Actually, he played well from mid-summer on, and in a few cases, was not that far from going all the way.

My game never has been too bad," he said, smiling. "It's all just a state of mind. That's all it is for any of us. I had four rounds in the 60s in the San Antonio-Texas Open and that is the sort of thing that will do wonders for your confidence. That's what I mean."

He went on to tie for sixth in the Anheuser-Busch Classic, his last start of the year.

Tom had seven top 10 finishes, an improvement of three from the year before, but his finest round of 1980 came in the U. S. Open at Baltusrol. He opened with a seven-under 63 and later was tied for the lead by Jack Nicklaus.

"That was one of the finest rounds I've ever played," he said, and considering the brilliance with which he performed for so many years, that is saying a lot.

Early in the year, Ken Venturi gave Tom some help, but he added, "Ed Sneed has been my mirror over the years."

The first of Tom's 13 Tour victories came in the 1968 Andy Williams-San Diego Open when he eagled the final hole. His greatest year was 1973, when during an eight-week period in the spring and summer, he won five tournaments, including the British and Canadian Opens. In a stretch of 40 rounds, he had 20 in the 60's.

Later in 1973, he won the World Series of Golf (under the old four-man format) and the South African PGA. Several groups named him as their Player-of-the-Year.

There were times during 1980 when Fuzzy Zoeller's back was so painful that he could not bend over. It was nearly impossible for him to practice as much as he wanted, and it was torture to play 18 holes.

Yet, everything considered, he put together a remarkable year, with seven top 10 finishes and missing the cut in only three of 22 starts.

"It was an old injury that came back," he said. "One night playing high school basketball, I was submarined, and the back has bothered me from time-to-time ever since." For part of the year, he had to wear a corset.

Late in the year, he started to play with his old vigor, and said "everything is just about back to normal." That was when he opened the San Antonio-Texas Open with a 64 for the lead, and finally finished third. "When you are striking the ball well and putting well, you can cover up a lot of problems," he said.

Fuzzy blossomed as a superstar in 1979 when he won the Andy Williams-San Diego Open and also the Masters Tournament. He was six strokes in back of Ed Sneed starting the last round at Augusta National, and when he finished, he was thinking second place. As he sat in the scorers' tent at the 18th green, with Tom Watson, he watched Sneed bogey the last hole to force a three-way playoff. Fuzzy defeated Ed and Tom on the third extra hole.

His victory did surprise the experts, because this was his first trip to the Masters.

Fuzzy first gained "fame" at the 1976 Quad Cities Open when he birdied the last eight holes of the first round to tie Bob Goalby's all-time Tour record, set in the 1961 St. Petersburg Open.

Zoeller grew up alongside a fairway at the Valley View CC in New Albany, Ind., and it seemed natural when he started swinging a golf club at age three. He entered his first tournament two years later. He enjoyed all sports while growing up, but when he was eight his father said to him, "Son, all we're doing is running back and forth between the golf course and the baseball diamond. You had better choose one."

Fuzzy chose golf, but during his days in high school he played varsity basketball, mainly, he said to "keep in shape for golf, and in Indiana in the winter you can't play golf."

He was second in the state scholastic golf tournament in 1970 and went to Edison Junior College in Florida, where he won the State Junior College title before entering the University of Houston.

Arnold Palmer Award Will Go To PGA TOUR'S Money Leader

The Arnold Palmer Award, which will honor the PGA TOUR'S leading money winner beginning with 1981, was unveiled by Commissioner Deane R. Beman during the PGA TOUR'S inaugural National Awards Dinner last fall at Walt Disney World.

The original casting of the full-size figure of Palmer, created by sculptor Jack Worthington of Venice, Fla., was presented to Palmer by Commissioner Beman at the awards dinner.

In making the presentation, Beman said: "No player has ever brought such skill, courage and charisma to the game of golf. He continues to be the golden man of golf's golden age, and it is entirely appropriate that an award honoring Arnold Palmer be presented annually to the PGA TOUR'S leading money winner."

1980 PGA TOUR Official Statistics

Introduced prior to the start of the 1980 season, the PGA TOUR's Official Statistics program has brought a new dimension to the game. The nine categories provide a detailed look at the particular skills of players.

It was easy to pinpoint, for instance, the reasons for Tom Watson's superlative 1980 season. He was the only player to rank among the top ten in both GIR Percentage (9th) and Putting (T-2nd).

Providing food for thought and fodder for discussion by fans, the statistics brought to light some new faces during the 1980 season. Among them was Mike Reid, the quiet, unassuming Brigham Young product who earned $206,097. He didn't win a tournament, but he lead the Driving Accuracy category throughout the season and finished second, to Jack Nicklaus, in GIR Percentage. His reputation as one of the Tour's most accurate players is the result.

Listed here are the top 50 players in each of the nine performance categories. Leaders in official money are found elsewhere in the Tour Book.

Statistics are gathered at each PGA TOUR event and compiled by Official Statistician, Byron Ferguson, who relays the data to the PGA TOUR Headquarters in Ponte Vedra, FL, where the computer takes over the job of doing the calculations and producing the weekly standings.

The ten leaders in each category are released via the national wire services weekly. Should you have inquiries regarding players who are not listed in the top ten, contact Ferguson at the tournament site or telephone the PGA TOUR at (904) 285-3700.

Seasonal Championships

The PGA TOUR schedule is divided into three seasonal segments to give continuity to the individual tournaments and to honor players who have performed well during the various seasons. The segments are known as:

- WINTER TOUR, which started with the 1980 Buick-Goodwrench Open and will conclude with the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, March 22, 1981.
- SPRING TOUR, which will start with the 1981 Bay Hill Classic and will conclude with the Memorial Tournament, May 24, 1981.
- SUMMER TOUR, which will start with the 1981 Kemper Open and will conclude with the Buick Open, August 23, 1981.

Points are awarded on the following basis: first place, 100; second, 57; third, 36; fourth, 22; fifth, 19; sixth, 17; seventh, 15; eighth, 13; ninth, 11; and tenth, 10.

Each Seasonal Champion receives a handsome gold money clip.

THE WORLD SERIES OF GOLF

The sixth edition of the World Series of Golf — truly "The Championship" of world class players — will be contested again over the South Course of Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio, August 27-30, 1981.

The first qualifier for the 1981 Championship was Tom Watson, as he won the fifth annual World Series of Golf and its first-place prize of $100,000.

Players eligible for the 1981 Championship include:

- The defending champion, Tom Watson.
- Winner, 1981 Tournament Players Championship.
- Winner, 1981 Masters Tournament.
- Winner, 1981 United States Open.
- Winner, 1981 British Open.
- Winner, 1981 PGA Championship.
- Winner, 1981 Canadian Open.
- Winner, 1981 Western Open.
- Winner, 1981 United States Amateur Championship (provided still an amateur).
- Winner, 1981 British Amateur Championship (provided still an amateur).
- First two finishers in each of the Season Championships — the Winter Tour, the Spring Tour and the Summer Tour.
- Winners of two or more co-sponsored events on the PGA TOUR in the preceding 12 months.
- Current champion, PGA National Club Pro Championship, John Traub.
- Winners or leaders of the Order of Merit rating systems as follows: Three each from the European and Japan Orders of Merit. Two each from the South African, Australian and Asian Golf Circuit Orders of Merit.
- The 15 leaders on the PGA TOUR official money list, beginning January 1, 1981, and concluding with the Buick Open, August 23, 1981.

TPC champion Lee Trevino was all smiles as Commissioner Deane Beman makes the presentation of honors.

Lee Trevino's Victory March in TPC At Sawgrass was One of His Finest

Lee Trevino's feats on the fairways of the world are becoming legendary and after all of the great championships he has won, it is unlikely that any provided the satisfaction that he received at Sawgrass in 1980.

The seventh annual Tournament Players Championship belonged to Trevino but he had to beat back the stern challengers of the world's greatest players to win it.

The last group of the last afternoon was composed of Trevino, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player. Try as they might, neither Jack nor Gary could apply enough pressure to make Trevino buckle. Neither could Ben Crenshaw, who finished second; nor Tom Watson and Severiano Ballesteros, who tied for third.

They all made their runs at Lee, but could not stay up there with him. Neither could Hale Irwin or Hubert Green or John Mahaffey or Curtis Strange. They all tried, but came away shaking their heads in amazement at the marvelous display of determination and shotmaking that was provided by the new champion.

In all of his grand-and-glorious victories around the world, it is unlikely that he ever was pressed by so many greats of the game.

"I like smoke," he was to say later, "I've always liked pressure, and I'm hard to beat when I get out in front."

Asked if he was surprised that one of the "big boys didn't make more of a charge at you," he replied laughing, "Hey, I'm one of the big boys too. I'm not cotton candy."

Trevino's line score of 68-72-68-70—278, or 10-under par, was the lowest total in the four years the TPC was played at Sawgrass. Previously, Lanny Wadkins with 283 in 1979 had the low score, while Mark Hayes in 1977 and Nicklaus in 1978 each had a one-over par 289.

Irwin and Steve Melnyk were the first-day leaders with five-under par 67s, while Trevino was with nine others at 68. The wind didn't blow at Sawgrass that much the first day, and 54 of the 144 starters bettered the par of 72. That was something new for the links, too.

The weather was not so mild the next day, but Irwin remained at the top and was joined by Strange at five-under 139. Trevino was at 140, with Watson and Melnyk.

Trevino, paired with Watson and Irwin the third day, fashioned a splendid 68 on a day that was as beautiful as his score. He was at eight-under par 208. Then came Green, whose 66 equaled the course record at 209. Player and Strange were at 210, while Nicklaus, Watson, Irwin and Ballesteros were at 211.

The weather remained beautiful for the last afternoon, and so did Trevino. It took a closing 66 by Crenshaw to keep the pressure on Lee, but the Merry Mex was not about to wilt.

He claimed his victory, one of his greatest ever.

World Series of Golf champion Tom Watson receives his trophy from tournament chairman Charles Horn.

Tom Watson "Phenomenal," as Usual, In World Series of Golf Victory

One should not be amazed at anything Tom Watson does on a golf course, yet he continues to perform so phenomenally, that one cannot help but be amazed.

Such was the case on the South Course at Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio in August of 1980 at the World Series of Golf.

Tom had a round of five-over par 75 the second day, which is not uncommon in tournament golf at Firestone, but he had five-under par 65s on each of the other three days. That's never been done before, as he won the $100,000 grand prize and elevated his winnings for the year over the half-million dollar mark. No one had ever won that much in a year, either.

As runner-up Raymond Floyd was to say later: "You have to go out and watch him for two, three or more rounds. What he is doing is phenomenal. It isn't any one thing that he does so well, it is everything he does. If you watch him, then you will walk away scratching your head the way all the rest of us are doing."

Firestone played wet-and-long the first day, the result of heavy rains that had swept through northern Ohio earlier in the week. Still, Watson managed six birdies and a lone bogey for a 65 and a two-stroke lead over Ben Crenshaw, Larry Nelson and Craig Stadler.

Early that evening, the skies opened again and it wasn't long until the course was under water. That area had received four inches in five days.

This made it necessary for the "lift, clean and place" rule to be used for the final three rounds. Nearly every ball hit in the fairway would sink in the mud. If it managed to pitch out of its mark, it would be caked with mud. There was no other choice.

It made a difference to Watson the second day. He shot his 75, and fell back into a tie for 12th at 140, while Stadler turned in a 68 for a five-under 135. Crenshaw and Jerry Pate were at 136. Then came Floyd and defending champion Lon Hinkle at 137.

Watson's putter came to life again the third day, and he fashioned another brilliant 65, and suddenly was back in the lead, sharing the top spot with Stadler and Lee Trevino, all at five-under 205. Crenshaw, Hinkle and Pate were at 206. Interestingly enough, all three of the front runners bogeyed the difficult 18th.

"If I can shoot in the 60s tomorrow," Trevino was to say, "I'll have a chance to win."

Lee did with a 69, but that was only good for six-under 274 and a tie with Hale Irwin for fourth place. Watson was at his brilliant best, again, with six birdies before taking a bogey at the 18th for another remarkable 65, and a 10-under par 270. Floyd was at 272 while Pate closed with a 67 for third place at 273.

There was a bit of sadness the last day. Nicklaus suffered a severe lower lumbar spasm while on the practice tee, and could not play. He was in obvious pain.

RYDER CUP MATCHES

The Ryder Cup Matches developed from a match played between representatives of the American and British Professional Golfers' Association in England in 1926. That unofficial match, incidentally, was won by the British 13½ to 1½.

Following this highly successful exhibition, Samuel A. Ryder, a wealthy British seed merchant, offered to donate a solid gold trophy bearing his name to be competed for in a series of matches between professionals of the two nations.

From the start of the series through the 1959 Ryder Cup matches, the competition was comprised of four foursome matches one day and eight singles matches the other day, each at 36 holes.

In 1961, the format was changed to provide for four 18-hole foursomes the morning of the first day and four more that afternoon, then for eight 18-hole singles the morning of the second day and eight more that afternoon. As in the past, one point was at stake in each match, so the total number of points was doubled.

In 1963, for the first time, a day of four-ball matches augmented the program to add new interest to the overall competition. This brought the total number of points to 32.

In 1977, the format was altered once again. This time there were five foursomes on the opening day, five four-ball matches on the second day, and ten singles matches on the final day. This reduced the total number of points to 20.

For 1979, eligibility for the Great Britain-Ireland side was expanded to include all British PGA/European TPD members who are residents of European nations.

The 1981 Ryder Cup Matches will be played at Walton Heath Golf Club, Surrey, England, September 18-20.

THE VARDON TROPHY

The PGA Vardon Trophy, named in honor of the internationally famous British Golfer, Harry Vardon, was placed in competition among American professionals in 1937 as a successor to the Henry E. Radix Trophy, which, prior to that time, had been awarded annually to the professional having the finest tournament record in play in this country.

Today, the Vardon Trophy, a bronze colored plaque measuring 39" x 27" is awarded each year to the member of the PGA of America maintaining the finest playing average in those events co-sponsored or so designated by the PGA in each such period. A minimum of 80 rounds in tournaments considered official by PGA is required to win.

This image shows a single sheet of white paper with horizontal ruling lines. The lines are evenly spaced and run across the width of the page. There is no text or other markings on the paper.

NOTES:

$5.95

"All the color of the PGA TOUR's greats and near-greats.... Get acquainted with the best golfers in the world!"

JACK WHITAKER

"There is no more complete reference work in the game. It's an important tool in our coverage."

JOHN BRODIE

"You won't find me at a tournament without it."

DAVE ANDERSON
